If, yes, please indicate categories and statistics.	As above	In its statistics on asylum seekers, the Federal Office for Migration and Refugees (Bundesamt für Migration und Flüchtlinge - BAMF) uses the category 'unclear nationality'. POP	1	c		What is the UNHCR estimate for the population of stateless persons and/or those at risk of statelessness on the territory? What is UNHCR's source for this information?	As above	UNHCR indicates that there were 12,017 stateless people in Germany in 2016 (12,569 in 2015; 11,917 in 2014). They do not publish any data on people at risk of statelessness in Germany. UNHCR relies on data provided by the Federal Office for Migration and Refugees (Bundesamt für Migration und Flüchtlinge - BAMF) and the Central Register of Foreigners (Ausländerzentralregister - AZR). POP	1	d	Are there indirect (proxy) sources of statistics on stateless persons? E.g. categories of persons for which statistics are available where stateless persons may be more highly represented (e.g. relevant country of origin or profiles (e.g. Palestinians or Syrian Kurds)? Under this strand, stateless individuals can be indirectly listed under the following permits: Code RECF-60A-ALT: S.60a,RA,old version, suspension of deportation (Duldung); Code RECF-60A-2-1: S.60a(2),1.s.,RA, suspension of deportation (Duldung); Code RECF-60A-2-1-1: S.60a(2),1.s.,RA, susp.deport., missing travel doc (Duldung); Code RECA-AE-01: Temp. residence permit (Befristete Aufenthaltserlaubnis) according to Foreigners Act; Code RECA-AE-02: Unlim.residence permit (Unbefristete Aufenthaltserlaubnis) according to Foreigners Act Further indirect data on statelessness appears here: 'Code 12521-0041: Foreigners: Administrative districts, reference date, sex, selected types of residence permits, citizenship' &gt; 'LDRDG1 Citizenship'). This provides numbers on stateless individuals (ST 997) and unknown individuals (STAAT 900), as well as other nationalities under which stateless people might be listed as well, for example: Code ST224: Eritrea; Code ST459: Palestinian Territories; Code ST273: Somalia; Code ST276: Sudan (until 8 July 2011); Code ST277: Sudan (without South Sudan) (since 9 July 2011); Code ST278: South Sudan (since 9 July 2011); Code ST475: Syria. At 30 June 2016, 49,272 people were recoded as being on tolerated stay. Of these, 1,168 were stateless and 2, 670 with unclear nationality. The number of people on tolerated stay rose to 158,145 individuals by 30 April 2017 (no number on stateless people indicated).  Eurostat also provides information on residence permits issued for the first time to individuals with ‘unknown citizenship’ between the years 2008 and 2016.
POP	1	e		Have there been surveys or mapping studies done to estimate the population of stateless persons in the country?	• UNHCR Global Action Plan to End Statelessness 2014-2024: Action 10	There seem to be no surveys or mapping studies on stateless people in Germany.
POP	1	f		Are there other sources of estimates for the population of stateless persons (not covered by the above)? If so, list sources and figures.	As above  The European Network (EMN) offers additional data on travel documents issued under the 1954 Convention to stateless people for the first time: 2010: 470; 2011: 664; 2012: 1,720; 2013: 1,990; 2014: 2,319.  According to EMN: ‘Of the 7,163 travel documents issued to stateless persons for the first time between 2010 and 2014, 6,591 were issued for persons whose nationality status was recorded in the Ausländerzentralregister (AZR) as “stateless” or “unidentified status”. In these cases the country of origin is not recorded in the AZR. Of the remaining 572 persons,	EMN, Ad-Hoc Query on recognition of stateless persons. POP	1	g	Are there issues with reliability of stateless data? If yes, please describe why.	As above	Data in the GENESIS-Online Database and UNHCR is based on information provided by the Central Register of Foreigners (Ausländerzentralregister – AZR). It should be noted that the AZR was criticised for its erroneous information, in particular personal data and addresses. Consequently, people did not receive official correspondence and missed official appointments/subpoenas with the authorities. Information on stateless refugees remains unclear. There have been brief or in-depth parliamentary enquiries (Kleine oder Große Anfrage) by MPs to the German Government and there are the publications (Das Bundesamt in Zahlen, Geschäftsstatistik) of the Federal Office for Migration and Refugees (Bundesamt für Migration und Flüchtlinge - BAMF). However, these may also be affected by problems with the AZR. Another problem occurs when the authorities categorise asylum seekers who arrive without documentation as ‘stateless’ or having ‘unclear nationality’.	Thomas Öchsner, ‘Große Lücken im Ausländer-Register’ (Süddeutsche Zeitung, 4 August 2017):  http://www.sueddeutsche.de/politik/asylpolitik-grosse-luecken-im-auslaender-register-1.3615716 (G) A brief inquiry (Kleine Anfrage), Unklare Daten des Ausländerzentralregisters zu Ausreisepflichtigen [Unclear data of the Central Register of Foreigners on persons obligated to leave] BT-Drucksache 18/12725 (14 June 2017) (G) Flemming Krause, ‘Warum im Kreis Olpe seit 2015 rund 2000 mehr Ausländer leben’ (Westfalenpost, 1 August 2017):  https://www.wp.de/staedte/kreis-olpe/seit-2015-rund-2000-mehr-auslaender-im-kreis-olpe-id211438017.html (G)

Stateless Population Data – February 2018

POP	1	h		Are there indications that the stateless population is either over or under reported? Please describe.	As above	Due to the high number of people with unclear nationality, people on toleration, as well as unlisted irregular migrants, the actual number of stateless people in Germany could be underreported.
POP	1	i		Please provide any available figures on stateless refugees or asylum seekers (if there is data, please clarify whether Govt also counts stateless refugees and asylum seekers in the stateless population to avoid under/over reporting).	As above	The Federal Office for Migration and Refugees offers updated data on a monthly basis on matters related to asylum application in Germany. Stateless people appear in the statistics 'Aktuelle Zahlen zu Asyl' [Current figures on asylum] in April 2016 but the number is low. People with 'unclear' or 'unknown' nationality represent a larger group. Data on the total number of asylum applications, decisions, pending cases, first and second instance decisions, unresolved and unknown cases appear in German in 'Asylgeschäftsstatistik (01-07/17)'. Additional information on stateless refugees and stateless asylum seekers is published by the Bundestag in response to parliamentary inquiries (Kleine Anfrage, Große Anfrage) by party members. IDP	15	a	Stateless Status (AAP)	Does identification of a person as stateless result in permission to stay/legal status or any other benefit to the individual? Please describe what status is provided and what benefits attach to it.	• UNHCR (2014), Handbook on Protection of Stateless Persons : The 1954 Convention ...[grants] stateless persons a core set of rights. Its provisions, along with applicable standards of international human rights law, establish the minimum rights and the obligations of stateless persons in States party to the 1954 Convention. The status granted to a stateless person in a State Party... must reflect these international standards... Although the 1954 Convention does not explicitly require States to grant a person determined to be stateless a right of residence, granting such permission would fulfil the object and purpose of the treaty... It is therefore recommended that States grant persons recognised as stateless a residence permit valid for at least two years, although permits for a longer duration, such as five years, are preferable in the interests of stability. Such permits are to be renewable, providing the possibility of facilitated naturalization as prescribed by Article 32 of the 1954 Convention.	In practice, it seems stateless status is rarely granted, and most people are recorded as 'nationality unclear', which is not in line with case law. Under the Residence Act, a person becomes eligible for temporary residence (befristete Aufenthaltserlaubnis) when departure is impossible in fact or law, and obstacles to deportation are not likely to be removed in the foreseeable future, the applicant is not preventing departure and is actively seeking to obtain necessary documents. A residence permit should be granted if deportation has been suspended for 18 months and can be issued and renewed up to 3 years. If the person has lawfully stayed less than 18 months, it can only be granted and renewed for 6 months. In practice, administrations do not always give a permit after a period of 18 months on toleration.  The determination of statelessness itself does not lead to a right to residence.	Fachanwaltslehrgang Migrationsrecht des Deutschen Anwaltsinstitut e.V. Teil 2. DET	1	d	Is statelessness a judicially relevant fact in any decision to detain (in practice and in law)? If so, at what point(s) is a risk of statelessness identified? Is referral to an SDP possible within the detention regime?	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• Auad v Bulgaria [2011] Application no 46390/10 (ECtHR): as above.</li> <li>• UNHCR (2014), Handbook on Protection of Stateless Persons: Routine detention of individuals seeking protection on the grounds of statelessness is arbitrary... For stateless persons, the absence of status determination procedures to verify identity or nationality can lead to prolonged or indefinite detention. SDPs are therefore an important mechanism to reduce the risk of prolonged and/or arbitrary detention.</li> <li>• Equal Rights Trust (ERT) (2012), Guidelines to Protect Stateless Persons from Arbitrary Detention: Guideline 13 – states must identify stateless persons within their territory or subject to their jurisdiction as a first step towards ensuring the protection of their human rights.</li> <li>• International Commission of Jurists, Migration and International Human Rights Law: a Practitioner's Guide 2014: the detention of stateless persons can never be justified when there is 'no active or realistic progress towards transfer to another State'.</li> </ul>	If deportation will not be carried out due to factual grounds (for example difficulties to obtain a passport, or unwillingness of the country of destination to receive the individual), detention to secure deportation cannot be ordered. If the country of destination categorically does not issue home travel documents (Heimreisepapiere) within 3 months, detention cannot be ordered. However, according to case law, even if the identity of the individual cannot be determined but the country of destination for deportation is willing to receive the individual, deportation can be carried out. A stateless individual can be deported to a country of former nationality (if the person has become stateless in the meantime), even if it is not clear that the country of destination is willing to receive the person. From the perspective of administrative (not legal) practice, it is only possible to establish a factual impossibility to deport after several unsuccessful attempts. It should be noted that the authorities tend to categorise statelessness as 'unclear nationality' until it is determined, so the person should cooperate to obtain the necessary documents to establish their statelessness.	Reinhard Marx, Aufenthalts-, Asyl- und Flüchtlingsrecht. After 48 months on toleration, unrestricted access to the labour market is allowed but not self-employment. However, employment for the highly skilled, those in a family business, vocational training, and internships are allowed without obtaining permission from the Federal Employment Agency. Since the Integration Act entered into force on 6 August 2016, the priority check has been suspended for three years in several States.	https://www.bgblerichterstattung.de/xaver/bgblerichterstattung/start.xav#_bgblerichterstattung%2F%5B%40attr_id%3D%27bgblerichterstattung108s0162.pdf%27%5D_1525379731410 (G) BVerwGE 105, 232 (238), EZAR 045 Nr 7, NVwZ 1998, 297; HessVGH, 30.3.2006 – 3 T 556/06, EZAR NF 98 Nr 13; VG Saarbrücken, 29.10.2006 – 10 F 42/06; Marco Bruns, 'AufenthG §60a Vorrübergehende Aussetzung der Abschiebung (Duldung)' in Hofmann (ed), Ausländerrecht (2nd edn, Nomos 2016) 940, rectial 35 Articles 1, 2, 3, 4, Asylbewerberleistungsgesetz in der Fassung der Bekanntmachung vom 5.08.1997 (BGBl I 1997, 2022), zuletzt geändert durch Artikel 20 Absatz 6 des Gesetzes vom 23.12.2016 (BGBl I 2016, 3324) [Asylum Seekers' Benefits Act]: https://www.gesetze-im-internet.de/asylblg/BJNR107410993.html (G) Zwölftes Buch Sozialgesetzbuch (SGB XII) - Sozialhilfe - Artikel 1 des Gesetzes vom 27.12.2003 (BGBl I 2003, 3022), in Kraft getreten am 31.12.2003, 01.01.2004, 01.07.2004, 01.01.2005 bzw. 01.01.2007, zuletzt geändert durch Artikel 13 Gesetzes vom 23.12.2016 (BGBl I 2016, 3234) mWv 01.01.2017 [Social Code – Book XII – Social Assistance]: https://www.gesetze-im-internet.de/szb_12/SGB_12.pdf (G) Art. 32, Beschäftigungsverordnung (BeschV) vom 6.06.2013 (BGBl I 2013, 1499), zuletzt

PRS	1	b	Is the provision for stateless children to access nationality automatic or non-automatic (i.e. by application)?	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• UNHCR Guidelines on Statelessness #4 2012: Article 1 of the 1961 Convention provides Contracting States with two alternative options for granting nationality to children who would otherwise be stateless born in their territory. States can either provide for automatic acquisition of nationality upon birth pursuant to Article 1(1)(a), or for acquisition of nationality upon application pursuant to Article 1(1)(b) ...</li> <li>• ENS (2015), No Child Should Be Stateless: Article 1 of the 1961 Convention and article 6(2) of the ECN are the most important of these norms for the European context. Both oblige the conferral of nationality to children born on the territory if they would otherwise be stateless but allow some leeway in how states transpose this safeguard into their domestic systems. The first, and optimal, method – as it is all-encompassing and does not tolerate even a temporary period of statelessness – is to grant nationality to otherwise stateless children automatically, at birth.</li> </ul>	Both automatic and non-automatic. Under the German Nationality Act 2000, a child born after 1 January 2000 on German territory who has not yet reached the age of 10, or if an application for naturalisation was not presented before 31 December 2000, gains German nationality automatically by ius soli. If the child was born before 1 January 2000 or if an application for naturalisation was not submitted by 31 December 2000, acquisition is by application (non-automatic) and the conditions of Article 2 of the implementing act must be fulfilled (see 1a).	Die Bundesregierung, 'Das Geburtsortsprinzip':  https://www.bundesregierung.de/Content/DE/StatischeSeiten/Breg/IB2/Einbuergerung/gp-geburtsortsprinzip.html (G) Art. 4, Staatsangehörigkeitsgesetz in der im Bundesgesetzblatt Teil III, Gliederungsnummer 102-1, veröffentlicht bereinigte Fassung, zuletzt geändert durch Artikel 3 des Gesetzes vom 11. PRS	1	c	Is it a requirement that the parents are also stateless for the child to acquire the nationality of the host state?	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• UNHCR Guidelines on Statelessness #4 2012: The test is whether a child is stateless because he or she acquires neither the nationality of his or her parents nor that of the State of his or her birth; it is not an inquiry into whether a child's parents are stateless. Restricting the application of Article 1 of the 1961 Convention to children of stateless parents is insufficient in light of the different ways in which a child may be rendered stateless and contrary to the terms of those provisions.</li> <li>• ENS (2015), No Child Should Be Stateless: Only allowing access to nationality for stateless children whose parents are stateless fails to account for the circumstance where the child's parent(s) do hold a</li> </ul>	No. The individual must provide evidence of the factual circumstances. 					nationality themselves, but are unable to pass this on...
PRS	1	d		Are children born stateless required to prove they cannot access another nationality to acquire nationality of the country of birth?  If yes, please describe the requirement e.g. what is the standard and burden of proof, and how lack of any other nationality (i.e. statelessness) is determined in practice?	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>• UNHCR Guidelines on Statelessness #4 2012: A Contracting State to the 1961 Convention cannot avoid the obligations to grant its nationality to a person who would otherwise be stateless...based on its own interpretation of another State's nationality laws where this conflicts with the interpretation applied by the State concerned... the burden of proof must be shared between the claimant and the authorities... decision makers need to take into account Articles 3 and 7 of the CRC and adopt an appropriate standard of proof, for example... 'reasonable degree'... Requiring a higher standard of proof would undermine the object and purpose of the 1961 Convention. Special procedural considerations to address the acute challenges faced by children, especially unaccompanied children, in communicating basic facts with respect to their nationality are to be respected.</li> </ul>	If the parents are stateless, or if they were treated as stateless at the time of the birth, the authority must check if the parents may be able to transmit a nationality. If no indication is obtained, including the possibility that a State may recognise the child as a national in the future, statelessness at birth is determined. The burden of proof lies with the authority to demonstrate with concrete evidence that the child may be able to acquire another nationality. LIT	2	b		Is there training for lawyers on statelessness? If yes, please describe.	• UNHCR Expert Meeting, Stateless-ness Determination Procedures and the Status of Stateless Persons 2010 : as above	No information was available on any specific training.
LIT	3	a	Pro Bono	Are there specialised lawyers, law firms or organisations providing free advice to stateless persons or those at risk of statelessness? If yes, please describe.	• UNHCR (2014), Handbook on Protection of Stateless Persons : Applicants are to have access to legal counsel. • UNHCR (Good Practices Paper 6) : Provides the example of Liverpool Law Clinic providing legal assistance to stateless clients in the UK.	There are lawyers providing support on issues related to statelessness according to their webpages, though it is not clear whether this is pro bono/free of charge. NGOs, such as Pro Asyl or GGUA, as well as Refugee Law Clinics linked with universities offer legal advice free of charge.
LIT	4	a	Literature	Is there domestic legal academic literature on statelessness?  If possible, please provide number of scholarly articles/references/bodies and hyperlinks etc.		Yes  Dieter Gosewinkel, Einbürgern und Ausschließen.
