SDS.1.b	Training	Is there training to inform different government bodies about statelessness? If yes, please provide details (e.g. who provides training to whom/how often?)	UNHCR Executive Committee (2006) : Requests UNHCR to actively disseminate information and, where appropriate, train government counterparts on appropriate mechanisms for identifying, recording, and granting a status to stateless persons.	No information was found on any training provided to government bodies about statelessness.
SDS.1.c		Is there training for judges and lawyers on statelessness? If yes, please provide details (e.g. provider, frequency).	UNHCR (2016) : Officials who may be in contact with stateless persons need to be trained to identify potential applicants for stateless status and refer them to appropriate channels. UNHCR (2010) : It is recommended that States provide specialised training on nationality laws and practices, international standards and statelessness to officials responsible for making statelessness determinations.	There is no information available on specific training on statelessness. However, statelessness may indirectly form part of trainings or conferences e.g. during discussions on toleration or the obligation to present a passport or travel document. Parts of university courses may therefore deal with statelessness in different contexts.	Brot für die Welt, 'Staatenlose. SDS.11.b		Are there obligations in law on authorities to consider a claim of statelessness made within another procedure?	UNHCR (2016) : Access to the procedure must be guaranteed.	No.
SDS.11.c		Are there clear, accessible instructions for stateless people on how to claim their rights under the 1954 Convention and/or be identified as stateless?	UNHCR (2014) : For procedures to be fair and efficient, access must be ensured (dissemination of info, targeted info campaigns, counselling on the procedures, etc.). UNHCR (2016) : Information on the procedure and counselling services must be available to potential applicants in a language they understand. UN Convention Relating to the Status of Stateless Persons, 1954	There does not seem to be any accessible information on the specific steps to take for stateless people. Information provided mainly relates to asylum. Information is available on how to apply for a travel document under the 1954 Convention at district/municipality level. In 2020, the local TV channel WDR interviewed German lawyer, Jens Dieckmann, on the naturalisation of stateless people. Another short clip explains legal aid (Prozesskostenhilfe). However, this is mainly related to asylum procedures. It further talks about the selection of a lawyer and the procedure to obtain legal aid, including after the rejection of the claim. Both clips are in German and Arabic.
SDS.11.d		Is the examination and/or identification of statelessness conducted by a centralised body with relevant expertise? Please note the competent authority and evaluate appropriateness to national context.	UNHCR (2014) : States may choose between a centralised procedure or one that is conducted by local authorities. Centralised procedures are preferable as they are more likely to develop the necessary expertise. UNHCR (2016) : It is important that examiners develop expertise while ensuring that the procedures are accessible.	The examination takes place at a local level. For applications under the Residence Act, the local foreigners' office competent for the place of residence of the applicant conducts the examination.
SDS.11.e		Is there cooperation between agencies that may have contact with stateless people?	UNHCR (2016) : Cooperation between actors working on statelessness and the various government agencies involved in determining statelessness is good practice.	There is no evidence of cooperation between agencies.
SDS.12.a	Assessment (Group 2)	Who has the burden of proof when determining or identifying statelessness (in law and practice)?	UNHCR (2014) : The burden of proof is in principle shared (both applicant and examiner must cooperate to obtain evidence and establish the facts). UNHCR (2016) : SDPs must take into consideration the difficulties inherent in proving statelessness. UNHCR Expert Meeting (2010) : Individuals must cooperate to establish relevant facts. The burden should shift to the State if an individual can demonstrate they are not a national, on the basis of reasonably available evidence. Hoti v. Croatia ECtHR (2018) : State has responsibility to at least share the burden of proof with the applicant when establishing the fact of statelessness.	The burden of proof lies on the applicant, who must fulfil the duty of cooperation and initiative, while the authority has the obligation to notify and to impose. The obligations of both parties are mutually interrelated and have mainly been shaped by jurisprudence. The burden is on the applicant to present any possible certificate, document, medical certificate, voluntary DNA test, etc. to clarify their situation. The authorities are not obliged to gather information on case relevant facts concerning the individual abroad. A failure to cooperate can lead to fines. Reasonable steps are considered to be any that can be made by the applicant personally - e.g. repeated presentation at an embassy is unreasonable if it is clear that this would be unsuccessful, after repeated failed attempts. The Federal Administrative Court has stated the individual should present, e.g.: information on the previous residence and place of birth; own name and family members' names in direct line to great-grandparents, when these are known;

SDS.12.c		Is there clear guidance for decision makers on how to identify or determine statelessness (including e.g. sources of evidence and procedures for evidence gathering, etc.)?	ENS (2013) : Determining authorities can benefit from concrete guidance that sets clear benchmarks and pathways for the establishment of material facts and circumstances.	There is no clear or binding guidance on how to determine statelessness. The federal states (Länder) follow their own rules based upon the General Administrative Regulations for the Nationality Act, which briefly mention stateless people in relation to acquisition of nationality, prevention of statelessness, vulnerable groups and renunciation of nationality. The General Administrative Regulation for the Residence Act give some (vague) instructions on e.g. the procedures for collecting evidence (what are reasonable/unreasonable steps). SDS.13.a	Procedural safeguards (Group 2)	Is free legal aid available to stateless people?	UNHCR (2014) : Applicants should have access to legal counsel; where free legal assistance is available, it should be offered to applicants without financial means. ENS (2013) : If state funded legal aid is available, it should be provided to stateless claimants. If there is no state funded legal aid but asylum claimants can access free legal aid free of charge, the same level of access should be provided to stateless people.	There is no specific regulation to receive legal aid during the process. However, stateless people can obtain legal aid under the same conditions as any other foreigner, i.e. by demonstrating that they are financially in need of assistance, that their case has sufficient prospects of success and is not frivolous. They have to be registered in the local register, which can be challenging for irregular migrants (although they are not excluded from legal aid by law) as the evidence required may not be accessible to them (e.g. documents related to income, address, rental agreement) or they may not want to provide it because they fear deportation. The courts where the application for legal aid must be made can inform the immigration authorities of irregularly staying persons. Refugee Councils, NGOs (eg. ProAsyl), as well as Refugee Law Clinics and the church (eg. Caritas and Diakonie) provide legal assistance to foreigners, including stateless persons. SDS.14.b	Are stateless people otherwise able to access their rights under the 1954 Convention? (e.g. right to reside, travel document, work, healthcare, social security, education, housing, family reunification, right to vote, etc.)? Please provide details.	UN Convention Relating to the Status of Stateless Persons, 1954 UNHCR (2014): The status granted to a stateless person in a State Party must reflect international standards. It is recommended that States grant recognised stateless people a residence permit valid for at least two years, although longer permits, such as five years, are preferable in the interests of stability. Permits should be renewable.	When deportation is impossible in fact or in law and the person does not hold a temporary residence permit, people are entitled to a toleration of three months. In case of hardship, it can be extended to six months. If the person complies with their duty to cooperate in obtaining all relevant documents to establish their identity and nationality (or lack of nationality), the immigration authorities can extend the status of toleration on a three-monthly basis. If the person does not cooperate with the immigration authorities, the period of toleration is reduced to one month and can only be renewed on a monthly basis. The new migration package introduced in 2019 enables people on toleration who entered the country before August 2018 to extend their stay for up to 30 months. However, they must have had a job for at least one and half years on a 35 hours per week basis, and meet a certain level of language skills. However, meeting these conditions can be difficult for many people with 'tolerated status', including stateless people. A residence permit should be granted if deportation has been suspended for 18 months and can be issued and renewed up to 3 years. SDS.15.a	Access to nationality (Group 2)	In what timeframe do stateless people acquire the right to apply for naturalisation and how does this compare to others with a foreign nationality? Please describe the procedure and note whether this is facilitated for stateless people (e.g. exemption from nationality/language tests, fee waiver).	UN Convention Relating to the Status of Stateless Persons, 1954: Article 32 UNHCR (2016): It is recommended that States Parties facilitate, as far as possible, the naturalisation of stateless persons. Council of Europe Committee of Ministers (1999): Each State should facilitate the acquisition of its nationality by stateless persons lawfully and habitually resident on its territory. ENS (2013): The main benchmark is if there is any preferential treatment for stateless people compared to the general rules applied to those with a foreign nationality.	The only facilitated access to nationality for stateless people constitutes the possibility of applying for 'discretionary naturalisation' after 6 years' residence (Art 8 Residence Act). The person must have legal capacity, no criminal record, accommodation and be able to support themselves and any dependents. The law provides that these requirements can be waived 'on grounds of public interest or to avoid special hardship'. However, discretionary naturalisation is hardly used in practice. Stateless people can also apply for naturalisation after 8 years' residence under the same rules applicable to foreigners (Art 10 Residence Act). Other requirements include that the person has legal capacity, commits to the constitution, has a permanent right of residence, can support themselves and any dependents without recourse to social security (except where this is beyond the person's control), renounces or loses their previous nationality, has no criminal record, sufficient command of German as well as knowledge of the legal system and society. The residence period required may be reduced to 7 or 6 years depending on criteria that assesses the person's integration. Art. 10 also allows for the derivative naturalisation of spouses and minor children, irrespective of whether they have been regularly resident in Germany for eight years. The fee for naturalisation under the Nationality Act is 255 euros, which is reduced to 51 euros for a minor child under certain conditions. There are no specific fee waivers for stateless people, but the fee may be reduced or waived on grounds of equity or public interest or at the discretion of the local foreigners' office on a case by cases basis. The Nationality Act stipulates that the fee for the certificate of citizenship shall not exceed 51 Euros. Stateless people may face significant delays in the naturalisation process due to the complex procedure to establish their identity. There is some evidence on discriminatory treatment by the immigration authorities which complicates the naturalisation procedure for some individuals. However, there is no indication on one particular group of people being affected but a general observation that unequal treatment is mainly related to ethnic background.	For the difficult and long process to obtain German nationality, see: 'Saids Kampf gegen das Verschwinden' (TAZ, 14 November 2014) https://taz.de/Staatenlos-in-Deutschland-taz-Serie-Teil-I/!5028495/ Naturalisation for stateless people: Art 8, 10, 12 Residence Act Discretionary naturalisation, naturalisation of spouses and children and with regard to multiple nationalities. Arts 8, 10, 12 Staatsangehörigkeitsgesetz in der im Bundesgesetzblatt Teil III, Gliederungsnummer 102-1, veröffentlichten bereinigten Fassung, zuletzt geändert durch Artikel 4 der Verordnung vom 19. Detention

Item	Subtheme	Question	International Norms & Good Practice	Answer	Source
DET.1.a	Detention screening	Are immigration detention powers provided for in law? Please provide the legal source(s).	ICCPR Article 9(1) ECHR Article 5 (1)	Yes. The order for detention pending deportation is regulated federally (bundeseinheitlich). Implementation is a matter for the federal state (Bundesland) and may vary. German law provides for the right to life and physical integrity and states that the freedom of the person shall be inviolable. These rights may be interfered with only pursuant to a law. Authorities must act as quickly as possible and limit the duration of detention to the shortest possible time. Liberty of the person may only be restricted pursuant to law and prescribed procedures. Persons in custody may not be subjected to mental or physical mistreatment. Only a judge may rule on the permissibility or continuation of any deprivation of liberty. If such a deprivation is not based on a judicial order, a judicial decision shall be obtained without delay. The Residence Act sets out the types and procedures for detention in relation to deportation, expulsion, removal, the conditions to detain and the duration of (maximum) detention periods. Further guidance on specific measures is provided by the General Administrative Regulation for the Residence Act. The Act on Proceedings in Family Matters and in Matters of Non-contentious Jurisdiction sets out the procedures and rules related to deprivation of liberty (corresponding courts, deadlines, content of documents, legal aid and advice, rights of the individual affected, among others). The Courts Constitution Act determines the competent court.	Arts 2, 20, 83,84,104, Grundgesetz (GG) für die Bundesrepublik Deutschland in der im Bundesgesetzbuch Teil III, Gliederungsnummer 100-1, veröffentlichten bereinigten Fassung, zuletzt geändert durch Artikel 1 u. 2 Satz 2 des Gesetzes vom 29. DET.1.b	Does domestic law allow immigration detention for purposes other than those listed under ECHR 5(1)(f)?	ECHR Article 5(1)(f)	No, the conditions of ECHR 5(1)(f) apply. Different types of immigration detention are provided for in German law (Residence Act, Art. 15(5-6).	Art 15(5)-(6), Aufenthaltsgesetz (AufenthG) vom 25. DET.1.c	Does a proposed country of removal need to be identified before a person is detained for removal? Please describe the situation in law and in practice.	ICCPR Article 7 : Repeated attempts to expel a person to a country that refuses to admit them could amount to inhuman or degrading treatment. Auad v Bulgaria ECtHR (2011) : The only issue is whether the authorities were sufficiently diligent in their efforts to deport the applicant. EU Returns Directive : Any detention shall only be maintained as long as removal arrangements are in progress and executed with due diligence.	Yes. Under the Residence Act, the notice of intention to deport should specify the state to which the person is to be deported. Under the General Administrative Regulation for the Residence Act, the country of destination shall only be indicated in the case of a stateless person, if there exists the real possibility of deportation to a particular state and a deportation attempt can be made after consultation with the competent authorities. Under the Act on Proceedings in Family Matters of Non-Contentious Jurisdiction the application shall contain the grounds, including the obligation of the person concerned to leave the federal territory, the prerequisites and the feasibility of deportation, removal, and refusal of entry. In practice, however, the authorities do not strictly apply the law. Some states refuse to receive the individual, which may only come to light during detention. DET.1.d	Is statelessness juridically relevant in decisions to detain? Please describe how (risk of) statelessness is identified and whether referral to an SDP is possible from detention.	Auad v Bulgaria ECtHR (2011) Mikolenko v. Estonia ECtHR (2009): Detention may only be justified as long as deportation proceedings are being conducted with due diligence. UNHCR (2014): Routine detention of individuals seeking protection on the grounds of statelessness is arbitrary. Equal Rights Trust (2012): States must identify stateless persons within their territory or subject to their jurisdiction as a first step towards ensuring the protection of their human rights. International Commission of Jurists (2014): The detention of stateless persons can never be justified when there is no active or realistic progress towards transfer to another State.	If deportation will not be carried out due to factual grounds (e.g. difficulties to obtain a passport, or unwillingness of the country of destination to receive the individual), detention to secure deportation cannot be ordered. If the country of destination categorically does not issue home travel documents (Heimreisepapiere) within 3 months, detention cannot be ordered. However, according to caselaw, even if the identity of the individual cannot be determined but the country of destination for deportation is willing to receive them, deportation can be carried out. A stateless individual can be deported to a country of former nationality (if the person has become stateless in the meantime), even if it is not clear that the country of destination is willing to receive the person. From the perspective of administrative (not legal) practice, it is only possible to establish a factual impossibility to deport after several unsuccessful attempts. It should be noted that the authorities tend to categorise statelessness as ‘unclear nationality’ until it is determined, so the person should cooperate to obtain the necessary documents to establish their statelessness. The ‘Orderly Return Act’ significantly tightened detention and deportation rules, which are particularly concerning for stateless people whose status cannot be determined due to ‘not self-caused reasons’ (for example, impossibility of obtaining documents through embassies or gender discriminatory laws in country of origin or residence), but whose ‘duty to cooperate’ is questioned by the German immigration authority. The new Act further enables the authorities to put people into ‘participatory detention (Mitwirkungshaft)’ for maximum fourteen days if they have not complied with the required obligations to cooperate to clarify their identity. The law outlines that acquiring a passport is ultimately the responsibility of those without a passport and that this is not just a ‘duty to cooperate’ but an ‘obligation’ and violations of the passport obligation are considered an offence with fines of up to €5,000 (although positively the law does recognise that this is unreasonable in cases where people cannot approach the relevant embassy). These sanctions could negatively impact on stateless people who cannot provide documentation or subsequently acquire a passport from an embassy.	Reinhard Marx, Aufenthalts-, Asyl- und Flüchtlingsrecht. DET.1.e	Are stateless people detained in practice?		Yes, see POP 2a and DET 1c.
DET.1.f	Does law (and/or policy) provide that immigration detention should be used only as a last resort, after all alternatives have been exhausted in each individual case?	UNHCR (2014): Detention is a measure of last resort and can only be justified where other less invasive or coercive measures have been considered and found insufficient. EU Returns Directive: Article 15(1)	Yes.	Art 62(1) S 1 Aufenthaltsgesetz (AufenthG) vom 25. DET.2.b		Is there evidence that immigration detention is used in practice prior to all alternatives being considered?	As above.	Yes. Diakonie has stated that 'the order for deportation is often too hasty, and the courts do not always take due diligence to examine the applications for detention. Between 30-50% of the people supported by the [Diakonie] legal aid fund were released from custody.' In a statement in May 2017, Caritas and Diakonie declared the current detention system to be 'unlawful'. In a 2016 parliamentary inquiry, MPs refer to the current illegal and fast practice to detain. DET.3.a	Procedural safeguards	Is there a maximum time period for immigration detention set in law? What is it?	UN Human Rights Council (2010) : A maximum period of detention must be established by law and upon expiry the detainee must be automatically released. UNHCR (2012) : To guard against arbitrariness, maximum periods of detention should be set in national law. EU Returns Directive: Article 15(5) Equal Rights Trust (2012) : Detention should always be for the shortest time possible.	Yes, 18 months.	Art 62(4), Aufenthaltsgesetz (AufenthG) vom 25. DET.3.b		Does law/policy provide that individuals must be informed in writing of the reasons for their immigration detention?	UN General Assembly (1988) : Anyone who is arrested shall be informed at the time of the reason for his arrest. EU Returns Directive : Detention shall be ordered in writing with reasons being given in fact and in law. Equal Rights Trust (2012) : Stateless detainees shall receive their order of detention in writing and in a language they understand. International Commission of Jurists (2014) : The authorities shall ensure that sufficient information is available to detained persons in a language they understand on the nature of their detention and reasons for it.	Yes. The court must send a copy (translated if required) of the application for detention pending deportation to the individual, containing their name and reasons for detention. On federal state level, e.g. in North Rhine-Westphalia, the individual must receive a copy of the detention order in good time, translated into their native language or a language they understand. The immigration authorities can detain a person without prior judicial order and notice based on several grounds, including to secure the person's deportation or if there is a suspicion that the person may evade. DET.3.c	Are detainees provided with information on their rights, contact details of legal advice and support providers, and guidance on how to access an SDP?	Equal Rights Trust (2012) : Detaining authorities are urged to provide stateless detainees with a handbook in a language and terms they understand, containing information on all their rights and entitlements, contact details of organisations which are mandated to protect them, NGOs and visiting groups and advice on how to challenge the legality of their detention and their treatment as detainees.	There is no dedicated SDP procedure in place. Statelessness can be determined when the identity of a person needs to be clarified for deportation, but deportation can still be carried out even if identity has not been established if the country of destination will accept the person. During detention, both the authorities and the individual have to make efforts to obtain travel documents. DET.4.a	Protections on release	Are people released from detention issued with identification documents (including confirmation of their stateless status) and protected from re-detention?	UN Convention Relating to the Status of Stateless Persons, 1954 : Article 27 UNHCR (2014) : Being undocumented cannot be used as a general justification for detention. ENS (2015) : State parties to the 1954 Convention have an obligation to provide stay rights to stateless people who have been released from detention. Equal Rights Trust (2012) : Released stateless detainees should be provided with appropriate documentation and stay rights suitable to their situation.	Most of the time, toleration (Duldung) is granted, which may indicate that the individual is stateless or has unclear nationality. However, the status of toleration maintains the obligation to leave the country and does not protect the individual from re-detention. A detention order can be issued during toleration, if deportation can be carried out within 3 months. If deportation is suspended for 18 months due to impossibility to leave the country, for example, the individual may be granted a residence permit. For stateless people on toleration it can be difficult to obtain travel documents from the authorities. See SDS14a and SDS14b for further details.	Art 60a Aufenthaltsgesetz (AufenthG) vom 25. DET.4.b		If the purpose of detention cannot be fulfilled and the person is released, what legal status and rights are provided to them in law?	Saïd Shamilovich Kadzoev v Direktsia Migratsia' pri Ministerstvo na vatreshnite raboti ECJ (2009) : After the maximum period of detention has expired, the person must be released immediately. A lack of valid documentation or inability to support themselves should not be a deterrent to release. Equal Rights Trust (2012) : Released stateless detainees should be provided with appropriate documentation and stay rights suitable to their situation.	The individual is entitled to receive a toleration certificate. The certificate is enough in case they are unable to present a passport (see also DET4a). See SDS14a and SDS14b for further details. DET.4.c		If re-detention occurs, is the cumulative time spent in detention counted towards any maximum time limits?	Equal Rights Trust (2012) : When calculating the total time spent by an individual in detention, it is highly desirable that time spent in detention on previous occasions is taken into consideration.	No. Earlier periods of detention to secure deportation are only taken into account if they were ordered on the same grounds.	KG, FGPrax 2000, 84; BayObLG v 25. DET.5.a	Return and readmission agreements	Is statelessness considered a juridically relevant fact in any bilateral readmission and/or return agreements?	UNHCR (2014) : Efforts to secure admission or readmission may be justified but these need to take place subsequent to a determination of statelessness.	Yes, statelessness is a juridically relevant fact, but NOT in every bilateral readmission agreement. Out of 32 bilateral return agreements, 4 do not address stateless people. The multilateral return agreement between Belgium, Germany, France, Italy, Luxembourg, Netherlands and Poland also considers statelessness. Some readmission agreements allow for stateless people to be removed to places of former residence, even when no nationality status has been determined. PRS.1.a	Stateless born on territory	Is there a provision in law for stateless children born on the territory to be granted nationality? [If yes, continue to PRS1b. If no, proceed to PRS1h]	UN Convention on the Reduction of Statelessness, 1961 : Article 1 European Convention on Nationality, 1997 : Article 2 Convention on the Rights of the Child 1989 : Article 7 Committee on the Rights of Migrant Workers and Members of their Families & Committee on the Rights of the Child (2017) : States should strengthen measures to grant nationality to children born in their territory in situations where they would otherwise be stateless. European Parliament (2018) : The EU and its MS should ensure that childhood statelessness is adequately addressed in national laws in full compliance with Article 7 CRC.	Yes. Stateless children born on German territory are entitled to naturalisation if they: a) are stateless at birth b) born on German territory (including German ships and aircrafts) c) have lived lawfully and continuously in Germany for at least five years d) are under 21 years of age at the time of application e) do not have a custodial or juvenile sentence longer than five years. PRS.1.b		Is the provision for otherwise stateless children to acquire nationality automatic or non-automatic (i.e. by application)?	UNHCR (2012) : The 1961 Convention provides Contracting States with two alternatives for granting nationality to otherwise stateless children born in their territory: either automatic acquisition upon birth or upon application. ENS (2015) : The 1961 Convention and the ECN oblige the conferral of nationality to otherwise stateless children born on the territory. The optimal method is to grant nationality automatically at birth.	Both automatic and non-automatic. Under the German Nationality Act 2000, a child born after 1 January 2000 on German territory who has not yet reached the age of 10, or if an application for naturalisation was not presented before 31 December 2000, gains German nationality automatically by ius soli. If the child was born before 1 January 2000 or if an application for naturalisation was not submitted by 31 December 2000, the child must meet certain criteria and apply for the acquisition of nationality (non-automatic). PRS.1.c		Is it a requirement that the parents are also stateless for the otherwise stateless child to acquire nationality?	UNHCR (2012) : The test is not an inquiry into whether a child's parents are stateless. ENS (2015) : Only allowing access to nationality for stateless children whose parents are stateless fails to account for the circumstance where the parents hold a nationality but are unable to pass this on.	No. The individual must provide evidence of the factual circumstances. The child or their legal representative must demonstrate that they are not recognised as a national by another State. PRS.1.h		Are there specific provisions to protect the right to a nationality of children born to refugees?	UNHCR (2012) : Where the nationality of the parents can be acquired through a registration or other procedure, this will be impossible owing to the very nature of refugee status which precludes refugee parents from contacting their consular authorities.	No.
PRS.2.a	Foundlings	Are foundlings granted nationality automatically by law? If not automatic, please describe the procedure.	UN Convention on the Reduction of Statelessness, 1961 : Article 2 European Convention on Nationality, 1997 : Article 6(1)(b)	Yes. German law states that a foundling shall be deemed the child of a male German. If only the mother is later identified, the law is interpreted so that the child is considered as descending from a male German until both parents are identified.	Art 4, Staatsangehörigkeitsgesetz in der im Bundesgesetzblatt Teil III, Gliederungsnummer 102-1, veröffentlichten bereinigten Fassung, zuletzt geändert durch Artikel 4 der Verordnung vom 19. PRS.2.b		Is there an age limit (e.g. 'new-born' or 'infant') in law or practice specifying when a foundling would qualify for nationality?	UNHCR (2012) : At a minimum, the safeguard should apply to all young children who are not yet able to communicate information about the identity of their parents or their place of birth.	No. The child should be 'helpless', which is interpreted to mean that the child should not be able to provide any information about his/her origin. This can apply to older, minor children as well, who may not be able to express themselves or understand complex procedures.	Thomas Oberhäuser, 'StAG §4. Erwerb durch Geburt', in Rainer M Hofman, Ausländerrecht (2 nd edn, CH Beck 2016) recital 8 4.2, Allgemeine Verwaltungsvorschrift zum Staatsangehörigkeitsrecht (StAR-VwV) vom 13. PRS.2.c		Can nationality be withdrawn from foundlings if this leads to statelessness?	UNHCR (2012) : Nationality acquired by foundlings may only be lost if it is proven that the child possesses another nationality.	No.	Art 16, Grundgesetz (GG) für die Bundesrepublik Deutschland in der im Bundesgesetzblatt Teil III, Gliederungsnummer 100-1, veröffentlichten bereinigten Fassung, zuletzt geändert durch Artikel 1 u. 2 Satz 2 des Gesetzes vom 29. PRS.3.a	Adoption	Where a child national is adopted by foreign parent(s), does the child lose their original nationality before the new nationality is acquired?	UN Convention on the Reduction of Statelessness, 1961 : Article 5 ENS (2015) : Children may be exposed to a (temporary) risk of statelessness during the adoption process due to the nationality law of the child's country of origin.	No.	Arts 17, 27, Staatsangehörigkeitsgesetz in der im Bundesgesetzblatt Teil III, Gliederungsnummer 102-1, veröffentlichten bereinigten Fassung, zuletzt geändert durch Artikel 4 der Verordnung vom 19. PRS.3.b		Does a foreign child adopted by national parents acquire nationality? Please specify any age limits and/or risk of statelessness during the adoption process.	European Convention on Nationality, 1997 : Article 6(4)(d) Committee on the Rights of the Child (2015) : Ensure that the child is not stateless or discriminated against during the waiting period between arrival and formal adoption.	Yes. A child who is under 18 at the time of application for adoption shall acquire nationality on valid adoption by a German under German law. The acquisition of nationality shall extend to the child's descendants. There is no risk of statelessness. PRS.4.a	Ius sanguinis	Can children born to nationals abroad acquire nationality by descent (ius sanguinis) in general and/or if they would otherwise be stateless?	UN Convention on the Reduction of Statelessness, 1961 : Article 4 UNHCR (2012) : Where a child who would otherwise be stateless is born to parents of another Contracting State but does not acquire the nationality of the State of birth responsibility falls to the Contracting State of the parents to grant its nationality to the child.	Not in all cases. Under the Nationality Act, German nationality shall not be acquired in case of birth abroad if the German parent was born abroad after 31 December 1999 and is ordinarily resident abroad, unless the child would otherwise be stateless, or unless an application for certification of the birth is filed with the competent authorities within a year of the child's birth. However, even if the parent has not registered the child with the German authorities, the child of a German national has the right to enter and leave the country with their parent under the Residence Act and is entitled to privileged naturalisation.	Art 4, Staatsangehörigkeitsgesetz in der im Bundesgesetzblatt Teil III, Gliederungsnummer 102-1, veröffentlichten bereinigten Fassung, zuletzt geändert durch Artikel 4 der Verordnung vom 19. Juni 2020 (BGBl 2020 I, 1328) [Nationality Act]: https://www.gesetze-im-internet.de/stag/BJNR005830913.html (DE) Thomas Oberhäuser, 'StAG §4. Erwerb durch Geburt', in Rainer M Hofman, Ausländerrecht (2 nd edn, CH Beck 2016) recital 31
PRS.4.b		Are there any discriminatory conditions in law and/or practice for the acquisition of nationality by descent (e.g. differential treatment of children born out of wedlock, rights of father/mother/same-sex parents to confer nationality, etc.)?	Genovese v. Malta ECtHR (2011) : The state must ensure that the right to nationality is secured without discrimination. CEDAW Gen. rec. No. 32, 2014 : Requires States parties to ensure that women and men have equal rights to confer their nationality to their children and that any obstacles to practical implementation of such laws are removed. UNHCR (2014) : Action 4	Not to our knowledge.
PRS.5.a	Birth registration	Does the law provide that all children are registered immediately upon birth regardless of the legal status and/or documentation of parents?	Convention on the Rights of the Child, 1989 : Article 7 International Covenant on Civil and Political Rights, 1966 : Article 24(2) Council of Europe (2009) : Member states should register the birth of all children born on their territory even if they are born to a foreign parent with an irregular immigration status or the parents are unknown. UNHCR (2012) : Article 7 CRC applies irrespective of the nationality, statelessness or residence status of the parents. UNHCR (2014) : Action 7 UN Sustainable Development Goal 16.9	Yes, according to the Civil Status Act, children must be registered immediately, including in detention centres. The birth must be communicated to the registry office in the jurisdiction where the child was born within one week, either by any parent entitled to custody, any person who was present at or who is informed about the birth, or the institution. Documents such as the birth certificates of the parents, marriage certificate or a certified copy of their marriage register, a recognised passport (replacement papers) of the parents must be submitted. A child can be registered even if the parents' stay in the country is irregular. If parents cannot present the documentation required, other evidence may be provided. If these are not easier to obtain, or if the actual facts of the persons concerned cannot be proved by public or other certificates, the civil registrar can take a declaration on oath as ultimo ratio. However, due to the federal system, it is the competent registry office in each federal state that needs to decide whether the conditions for a declaration on oath are met. Birth registration in Germany could also lead to statelessness of foreign children if the child is only registered with the mother due to a missing marriage certificate of the parents. This is particularly the case for countries that do not allow the mother to pass on her nationality to the child. In some cases, the child may face stigma if perceived as a child born out of wedlock. PRS.5.b	Are all children issued with birth certificates upon registration? If no, please describe legal status of documentation issued.	UN Human Rights Council, Resolution A/HRC/RES/20/4 : Underscores the importance of effective birth registration and provision of documentary proof of birth irrespective of immigration status and that of parents or family members. Committee on the Rights of Migrant Workers and Members of their Families & Committee on the Rights of the Child (2017) : Take all necessary measures to ensure that all children are immediately registered at birth and issued birth certificates, irrespective of their migration status or that of their parents.	If the required documents cannot be presented, parents do not receive a birth certificate (Geburtsurkunde) but an extract from the birth register (Auszug aus dem Geburtenregister), which also serves as an official document with equal legal status (Civil Status Act; BT-Drucksache 18/9163). If the identity of the parents cannot be proven, the extract of the registry will contain the additional note 'identity not established' (Regulation on the Civil Status Act) and the main entry and extract will indicate 'Family surname not proven' (No 1199). Notes on the identity of the parents are emergency solutions and can cause problems in the future, e.g. for naturalisation. The extract contains information that does not appear in the birth certificate (e.g. place of birth with street name – if any, house number – if any, birth time). If yes, please describe how and by whom (e.g. if the mother/father's nationality is recorded and/or automatically attributed to the child, if there's a formal procedure, if information on both parents is recorded etc.)	Convention on the Rights of the Child, 1989 : Articles 3 & 7	Upon receiving the notification of birth, the registry office asks parents to provide a number of documents to prove their identity. PRS.5.d	If a child's nationality is not determined or recorded upon birth registration, is there a legal framework to determine the child's nationality later? If yes, please describe the procedure, including the legal grounds, deadlines and competent authority.	Convention on the Rights of the Child, 1989: Articles 3 & 7 UN Convention on the Reduction of Statelessness, 1961: Articles 1 & 4 UNHCR (2012): States need to determine whether a child would otherwise be stateless as soon as possible so as not to prolong a child's status of undetermined nationality. Such a period should not exceed five years.	It is likely that children are kept in limbo for more than five years. The relevant documents to obtain a birth certificate (instead of an extract) from the registrar that support the process to determine the identity and nationality can be submitted later. There is no time limit. See also PRS.5.b and c.
PRS.5.e	Are there credible reports to suggest that children are prevented from registering in practice because of parents' legal status or other reasons (please specify)?	Committee on the Rights of Migrant Workers and Members of their Families & Committee on the Rights of the Child (2017): Urge States parties to take all necessary measures to ensure that all children are immediately registered at birth and issued birth certificates, irrespective of their migration status or that of their parents. Legal and practical obstacles to birth registration should be removed. Global Compact for Safe, Orderly and Regular Migration: States will contribute resources and expertise to strengthen the capacity of national civil registries to facilitate timely access by refugees and stateless persons to civil and birth registration. Global Compact on Refugees: States commit to fulfil the right of all individuals to a legal identity and ensure that migrants are issued documentation and civil registry documents. European Parliament Resolution (2019): Calls on Member States to take immediate corrective measures to stop discriminatory birth registration.	Yes, there are reports that refugees and undocumented migrants face problems certifying the birth of their children due to missing documents (marriage certificate, birth certificate), or fear of being deported, due to the obligation on the registry authorities to report irregular migrants. Undocumented migrants may not give birth in hospitals, so the child would not be automatically registered by the institution. According to a study on birth registration, the declaration on oath is hardly applied, and if so, not necessarily accepted as an equal valid document, for instance by public health insurances. Missing marriage certificates and differing names of the parents can create barriers for access to basic needs in practice despite such a legal declaration. Due to the federal system, there is no data on the number of declarations of oaths accepted by the registry offices. A similar problem appears with extracts from the birth registers: despite its legal equal status to a birth certificate, they are often not recognised as suitable equivalent in practice, and consequently not accepted for access to basic services and benefits. In general, declarations on oath are limited to information which should be supported by certificates in accordance with the law and strictly concern facts, not legal conclusions. Further evidence shows that refugee children are not even issued an extract from the birth register (Auszug aus dem Geburtenregister), but only received a provisional certificate (vorläufige Bescheinigung) indicating that the birth of the child was communicated but not registered. Such a certificate does not have the same value as the extract nor the birth certificate (Social Court Munich) and prevents families e.g. from access to parental benefits, important preventive health check-ups and the issue of a national tax number which in turn prevents access to social security entitlements. To date though, there is no solid data collection on such cases by the Ministries of the Interior (Landesinnenministerien). Overall, administrative practice in the case of lack of proof of identity differs significantly between registry offices. The German Institute for Human Rights provides guidance on these issues.	Deutsches Institut für Menschenrechte, Die Politik muss dafür sorgen, dass Kinder von Geflüchteten Geburtskunden erhalten, Press release, 1 June 2016 (DE) Geburtskunden von Flüchtlingskindern [Birth certificates of refugee children] BT-Drucksache 18/9163 (13 July 2016) (DE) Committee on the Rights of the Child, Concluding observations on the combined third and fourth periodic reports of Germany*, 25 February 2014, UN Doc CRC/C/DEU/CO/3-4 Deutsches Institut für Menschenrechte, How to register your newborn: http://www.institut-fuer-menschenrechte.de/fileadmin/user_upload/Publikationen/Weitere_Publikationen/Info_How_to_Register_Your_Newborn.pdf (DE) Deutsches Institut für Menschenrechte, Monitoring-Stelle UN-Kinderrechtskonvention, 'Keine Papiere – keine Geburtskunde? Committee on the Rights of Migrant Workers and Members of their Families & Committee on the Rights of the Child, JGC No. 4 (2017) and JGC No. 3 (2017) : Legal and practical obstacles to birth registration should be removed, including by prohibiting data sharing between health providers or civil servants responsible for registration with immigration enforcement authorities; and not requiring parents to produce documentation regarding their migration status.
