International and Regional Instruments

Item	Subtheme	Question	International Norms & Good Practice	Answer	Source
IOB.1.a	1954 Convention	Is your country party to the 1954 Statelessness Convention?	UN Convention Relating to the Status of Stateless Persons, 1954	Yes, the Republic of Latvia is party to the 1954 Convention.	Par 1954.gada 28.septembra Konvenciju par bezvalstnieka statusu (Law on Ratification of 1954 Convention), 1998: https://likumi.lv/ta/id/16113-par-1954-gada-28-septembra-konvenciju-par-bezvalstnieka-statusu#p24&amp;pd=1 (LV)
IOB.1.b		If yes, when was ratification/accession?		The Law on ratification was adopted in Saeima (parliament) on 16 Sept 1999, came into force on 5 Oct 1999. The Convention came into force on 6 Feb 2000 in accordance with Article 39.	Par 1954.gada 28.septembra Konvenciju par bezvalstnieka statusu (Law on Ratification of 1954 Convention), 1998: https://likumi.lv/ta/id/16113-par-1954-gada-28-septembra-konvenciju-par-bezvalstnieka-statusu#p24&amp;pd=1 (LV)
IOB.1.c		Are there reservations in place? Please list them.	Best practice is no reservations. If there are, they should have little or no impact on the rights of stateless people.	Arts 24(1)(b) & 27 shall be in force and implemented, if the state legal acts do not provide different regulations.	Par 1954.gada 28.septembra Konvenciju par bezvalstnieka statusu (Law on Accession to the 1954 Convention), 1998: https://likumi.lv/ta/id/16113-par-1954-gada-28-septembra-konvenciju-par-bezvalstnieka-statusu#p24&amp;pd=1 (LV)
IOB.1.d		Does the Convention have direct effect?	Best practice is that the Convention has direct effect, though this may depend on the legal regime.	Based on its “monism” legal regime, international agreements in Latvia, including the Convention, have direct effect on enactment of the ratification/accession.	Par Latvijas Republikas starptautiskajiem līgumiem (On International Treaties of the Republic of Latvia), 2016, Art. 13: https://likumi.lv/ta/en/en/id/57840-on-international-treaties-of-the-republic-of-latvia

IOB.2.b		If yes, when was ratification/accession?		Accession on 4 May 1990 with the Declaration on the Accession of the Republic of Latvia to the International Law Documents in Human Rights Matters (came into force on 22 May 1990). The Convention came in force on 13 July 1992.	Par Konvenciju par precētu sieviešu pilsonību, Konvenciju par bezvalstniecības samazināšanu un Konvenciju pret spīdzināšanu un citiem nežēlīgas, necilvēcīgas vai pazemojošas izturēšanās vai sodīšanas veidiem (Notification of accession), 2011: https://likumi.lv/ta/id/235072-par-konvenciju-par-precetu-sieviesu-pilsonibu-konvenciju-par-bezvalstniecibas-samazinasanu-un-konvenciju-pret-spidzinasanu-un-c (LV)
IOB.2.c		Are there reservations in place? Please list them.	As above	No.
IOB.2.d		Does the Convention have direct effect?	As above	Yes (see IOB 1 d). Stateless Population Data

Item	Subtheme	Question	International Norms & Good Practice	Answer	Source
POP.1.a	Availability and sources	Does the State have a standardised ‘stateless’ category in its data collection systems (e.g. census)? Please list available figures for the total stateless population on the territory and describe how data is disaggregated (e.g. by sex, age, residence).	CEDAW, Gen. Rec. 32 (2014): States parties should gather, analyse and make available sex-disaggregated statistical data and trends. Council of the European Union, Conclusions on Statelessness (2015): Recognise the importance of exchanging good practices among Member States concerning the collection of reliable data on stateless persons as well as the procedures for determining statelessness. UNHCR, Global Action Plan to End Statelessness 2014-24 (2014): Improve quantitative and qualitative data on stateless populations. ISI, The World’s Stateless (2014): States should strengthen measures to count stateless persons on their territory. International Recommendations on Statelessness Statistics (IROSS) (endorsed by UN Statistical Commission in 2023): States should use standardised definition of statelessness and consistent indicators for collecting statelessness data.	Yes, it does. Government data from the Register of Natural Persons (formerly Population Register) records the country of origin of stateless persons as follows: 159 Latvia, 15 Ukraine, 4 Estonia, 2 Belarus, 1 United Kingdom, 1 Uzbekistan, 1 Lithuania, 1 Finland, 1 citizen of the USSR, 3 persons of unknown nationality, 6 - not indicated as of 1 January 2024. There are also 33 non-citizens originating from Estonia.. The Register of Natural Persons data is disaggregated by country and ethnic origin as well as nationality status. As well as ‘stateless’, other nationality categories include: Latvian citizen, Latvian non-citizen, Latvian alternative (subsidiary status), Latvian stateless, Latvian refugee, Latvian temporary protection, Estonian non-citizen, Estonian stateless, Belarus stateless, Finland stateless, Uzbekistan stateless, ‘not indicated’ (nav norādīta), and ‘state unknown not indicated’. Data is also available by age and nationality status. Detailed data on persons by nationality status in municipalities is available. Data on stateless persons by ethnic origin status: 94 are Russian, 15 - Ukrainian, 7 - Belarusian, 10 - Roma, 4 -Armenian, 1 - Polish, 2 - Azeri, 1 - Avar, 1 - Jewish, 2 - Georgian, 1 - Greek, 1 - Iranian, 1 - Kyrgyz, 1 - Moldovan, 2 - Latvian, 2 - Lithuanian, 1 - Lezgin, 2 - Chechen, 1 - Udmurt, 1 - Uzbek, 1- Tsakhur, 6 – ‘unchosen’, 2 – ‘unknown’. On 28 June 2021, the Population Register was replaced by the Register of Natural Persons. The new register includes more information about foreigners with legal links to Latvia.	Office of Citizenship and Migration Affairs, Latvijas iedzīvotāju sadalījums pēc valstiskās piederības, 1 January 2024 https://www.pmlp.gov.lv/lv/media/11046/download?attachment (LV) Office of Citizenship and Migration Affairs, Latvijas iedzīvotāju sadalījums pēc nacionālā sastāva un valstiskās piederības, 1 January 2024(LV) https://www.pmlp.gov.lv/lv/media/11043/download?attachment (LV) Office of Citizenship and Migration Affairs, Latvijas iedzīvotāju sadalījums pēc dzimšanas gada un valstiskās piederības, 1 January 2024 https://www.pmlp.gov.lv/lv/media/11040/download?attachment (LV)
POP.1.b		Do public authorities define data categories that may overlap (e.g. unknown nationality) or where stateless people might be more highly represented (e.g. Palestinian)? Please explain and provide any available figures.	As above	Yes. There is a separate legal category of residents called “non-citizens” (nepilsonis) under Latvian law, who are former USSR citizens and their descendants who have not received citizenship automatically, obtained citizenship through naturalisation or other means, or taken another country’s citizenship since the restoration of Latvian independence. Their status is defined under 25 April 1995 Law on the Status of those Former USSR Citizens who do not have the Citizenship of Latvia or that of Any Other State (“Non-citizens”). According to the Government, there are 180,455 ‘non-citizens’ in Latvia. Data on ‘non-citizens’ (as well as other citizenship categories) is disaggregated in the Register of Natural Persons by ‘ethnic origin’. On 1 January 2024, of the 180,455 Latvian ‘non-citizens’: 118,546 were Russian, 25,000 Belarussian, 18,016 Ukrainian, 6,475 Polish, 4,235 Lithuanian, 1,177 Jewish, 801 Tatar, Moldovan - 635, 582 Armenian, 541 Azeri, 403 Latvian, etc. Some ‘ethnicity’ categories overlap with ‘national origin’ e.g. Afghan, Algerian, American etc. Some categories may capture stateless people who have not been recognised under the SDP. There are also people with ‘unknown’ ethnic origin (53), and nationality ‘not chosen’ (625).	Par to bijušās PSRS pilsoņu statusu, kuriem nav Latvijas vai citas valsts pilsonības (On the Status of those Former U.S.S.R. POP.1.c		What is UNHCR's estimate for the stateless/at risk of statelessness population and what is the source for this estimate?	As above	UNHCR in its latest Global Trends report (2022) reports the total number of stateless persons in Latvia as 187,404 at the end of 2022. It provides an explanation for the data listed in a footnote: "This figure includes persons of concern who fall under Latvia's 25 April 1995 Law on the Status of those Former USSR Citizens who are not Citizens of Latvia or Any Other State ("Non-citizens"). In the specific context of Latvia, the "Non-citizens" enjoy the right to reside in Latvia ex lege and a set of rights and obligations generally beyond the rights prescribed by the 1954 Convention relating to the Status of Stateless Persons, including protection from removal, and as such the "Non-citizens" may currently be considered persons to whom the Convention does not apply in accordance with Article 1.2(ii)." UNHCR's Refugee Data Finder reports a similar figure for stateless persons: 187,564.	UNHCR Global Trends 2022, Annex Table 5. POP.1.d		Have there been any surveys or mapping studies to estimate the stateless population in the country?	As above	No, no survey or mapping study of statelessness in Latvia has been published. Figures cited by different international bodies are based on the Register of Natural Persons in Latvia.
POP.1.e		Are there any other sources of estimates for the stateless population not covered by the above? Please list sources and figures.	As above	No.
POP.1.f		Are there issues with the reliability of data or indications that the stateless population may be over/under reported? If yes, please describe.	As above	The reliability of stateless data in Latvia depends on the interpretation of "non-citizen" status, and the definition of a stateless person in Latvia. People who fall under either category in Latvian law ('stateless person' or 'non-citizen') are stateless under international law (Article 1(1) of the 1954 Convention). Although 'non-citizens' are granted rights (and a route to naturalisation if they can meet certain conditions) that go beyond the minimum rights prescribed by the 1954 Convention, they are not entitled to 'equivalent rights' to Latvian citizens). There are important differences distinguishing non-citizens from citizens, including a lack of political rights and some restrictions on employment and land ownership. Moreover, 'non-citizens' in Latvia clearly lack a nationality and therefore meet the definition of a stateless person under international law regardless of any question of whether they should be excluded from protection under the 1954 Convention. Protection under the Convention and the definition of a stateless person should not be confused, as the international legal definition applies at the moment in time in which it is determined, regardless of whether the stateless person is able to acquire rights and a nationality at a later date, or whether they are deemed to be excluded from protection under the Convention, which is a	UN High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR), Latvia: UNHCR Submission for the Universal Periodic Review - Latvia - UPR 38th Session (2021), October 2020, available at:  https://www.refworld.org/docid/607600494.html Martins Paparinskis, Policy Brief requested by the LIBE Committee of the European Parliament, Political and Electoral Rights of Noncitizen Residents in Latvia and Estonia: Current Situation and Perspectives, April 2018:  http://www.europarl.europa.eu/RegData/etudes/BRIE/2018/604953/IPOL_BRI(2018)604953_EN.pdf ENS (2015), Ending Childhood Statelessness: A Study on Latvia, p.3:  https://www.statelessness.eu/sites/www.statelessness.eu/files/Latvia_0.pdf UN High Commissioner for Refugees (UNHCR), Information and Accession Package: The 1954 Convention relating to the Status of Stateless Persons and the 1961 Convention on the Reduction of Statelessness, January 1999, p.11:  https://www.refworld.org/docid/3ae6b3350.html

				separate legal consideration. Nonetheless, Latvian law deals with the two groups separately. Latvian courts have stated that non-citizens cannot be considered as stateless persons: “Latvian non-citizens can be regarded neither as the citizens, nor the ‘aliens’ and stateless persons but as persons with “a specific legal status”. The Constitutional Court held that ‘non-citizen’ is ‘a category unknown in international law’ due to the scope of rights held by this group in Latvia. In 2008, the Latvian Supreme Court Senate stated that, as a ‘non-citizen’ has a broad scope of social and economic rights, assigning them the status of a stateless person would contradict the 1954 Convention, adopted to provide social and economic protection to persons without any status. It held that Article I(2)(ii) (exclusion clause) of the Convention applies. UNHCR distinguishes between the two categories but has consistently considered them both to constitute ‘persons under its statelessness mandate’. However, in 2017, in a footnote in its Global Trends Report, it stated: “In the specific context of Latvia, the “Non-citizens” enjoy the right to reside in Latvia ex lege and a set of rights and obligations generally beyond the rights prescribed by the 1954 Convention relating to the Status of Stateless Persons, including protection from removal, and as such the “Non-citizens” may currently be considered persons to whom the Convention does not apply in accordance with Article 1.2(ii).” The same or similar note has appeared in UNHCR statistics for more recent years as well. ## Statelessness Determination and Status

SDS.1.a	Definition of a stateless person	Is there a definition of a stateless person in national law? Do the definition and exclusion provisions align with the 1954 Convention? Please provide details.	1954 Convention : Articles 1(1) & 1(2).	Article 2.1 of the Law on Stateless Persons states that someone may be recognised as a stateless person in the Republic of Latvia ‘if some other state has not recognised the person as a citizen thereof in accordance with the laws of such state.’ The Citizenship Law defines a stateless person as ‘someone who is not considered a citizen by any state in accordance with the laws thereof, except a person who is a subject of the Law On the Status of those Former USSR Citizens who do not have the Citizenship of Latvia or that of any Other State . Aside from excluding ‘non-citizens’ from the definition of a stateless person, the formulation ‘in accordance with the laws of such state’ is narrower than the 1954 Convention, which defines a stateless person as someone ‘not considered a national of any state under the operation of its laws’. There is also a special provision in the Law on Stateless Persons requiring the absence of guarantees from another state to grant citizenship for those who have lost ‘non-citizen’ status. The status of ‘non-citizens’ is defined under On the Status of those Former USSR Citizens who do not have the Citizenship of Latvia or that of any Other State, which defines this group as former Soviet citizens who were registered as living on the territory of Latvia on 1 July 1992, or their last registered place of residence before that date was on the territory of Latvia, and their children, provided that they have no other citizenship. The 1954 Convention Article I(2)(ii) states that the Convention shall not apply "To persons who are recognized by the competent authorities of the country in which they have taken residence as having the rights and obligations which are attached to the possession of the nationality of that country". People who fall under either category in Latvian law (‘stateless person’ or ‘non-citizen’) are stateless under international law (as per the definition in Article 1(1) of the 1954 Convention, which is also customary international law), but according to UNHCR, non-citizens may currently be considered persons to whom the Convention does not apply. Although ‘non-citizens’ are granted rights (and a route to naturalisation if they can meet certain conditions) that go beyond the minimum rights prescribed by the 1954 Convention, they are not entitled to ‘equivalent rights’ to Latvian citizens. There are important differences distinguishing non-citizens from citizens, including a lack of political rights and restrictions on employment and property ownership. Moreover, ‘non-citizens’ in Latvia clearly lack a nationality and therefore meet the definition of a stateless person under international law regardless of whether they should be excluded from protection under the 1954 Convention. Protection under the Convention and the definition of a stateless person should not be confused, as the international legal definition applies at the moment in time in which it is determined, regardless of whether the stateless person is able to acquire rights and a nationality at a later date, or whether they are deemed to be excluded from protection under the Convention, which is a separate legal consideration.	Law on Stateless Persons, 2007, Article 2.1 &amp; 2.2: https://likumi.lv/ta/en/en/id/84393-law-on-stateless-persons Citizenship Law, 2013: https://likumi.lv/ta/en/id/57512-citizenship-law UN Convention Relating to the Status of Stateless Persons, 28 September 1954, United Nations, Treaty Series, vol. 360, p. 117, Article 1: https://www.refworld.org/docid/3ae6b3840.html Par to bijušās PSRS pilsoņu statusu, kuriem nav Latvijas vai citas valsts pilsonības (On the Status of those Former U.S.S.R. SDS.5.a	Assessment (Group 1)	Who has the burden of proof in the SDP in law and practice?	UNHCR, Handbook on Protection (2014): The burden of proof is in principle shared (both applicant and examiner must cooperate to obtain evidence and establish the facts).  UNHCR, Good Practices Papers – Action 6 (2020): SDPs must take into consideration the difficulties inherent in proving statelessness.  UNHCR, Geneva Conclusions (2010): In statelessness determination procedures, the burden of proof should therefore be shared between the applicant and the authorities responsible for making the determination. Individuals must cooperate to establish relevant facts. The burden should shift to the State if an individual can demonstrate they are not a national, on the basis of reasonably available evidence.  ECtHR, Hoti v. Croatia (2018): State has responsibility to at least share the burden of proof with the applicant when establishing the fact of statelessness.	By law the person authorised by the Head of OCMA is entitled to take a decision on statelessness status (based on written information approved by OCMA at its disposal) even if the applicant due to reasons beyond their control is unable to submit any of the listed documents. Thus, it could be concluded that the burden of proof is shared. This also stems from the general principle of law within administrative procedures.	Law on Stateless Persons, 2007, Art. 4(2):  https://likumi.lv/ta/en/en/id/84393-law-on-stateless-persons Administratīvā procesa likums (Administrative Procedure Law), 2017: https://likumi.lv/doc.php?id=55567 (LV)
SDS.5.b		What is the standard of proof, in law and in practice? Is it the same as in refugee status determination procedures?	UNHCR, Handbook on Protection (2014): States are advised to adopt the same standard of proof as in refugee status determination ('reasonable degree').  UNHCR, Good practices in nationality laws (2018): The standard of proof should be in keeping with the humanitarian objectives of statelessness status determination and the inherent difficulties of proving statelessness in the likely absence of documentary evidence.  ECtHR, Hoti v. Croatia (2018): If statelessness is a relevant factor in the context of access to human rights, the standard of proof when determining the status of statelessness cannot be too high.	Asylum and statelessness categories cannot be fully compared. They are regulated by sources of law which are partially interlinked (e.g. by applied UNHCR practice and doctrine for both categories), however, there is a reason to believe that the standard of proof for the determination of statelessness is higher than in asylum cases. This is evidenced by the applicant's duty "to submit documents which confirm their right to receive the status of a stateless person". These documents include identification documents, a document issued by a foreign competent authority which confirms that the person is not a citizen of a specific country and they are not guaranteed the citizenship of that country, or a documentary confirmation that such a document is impossible to obtain. If a person may not submit the required documents, this must be due to circumstances beyond the person's control (Supreme Court Senate judgement No SKA 103/2023 of 8 February 2023). Article 4 part 2 of the Law on Stateless Persons). This legal norm grants the authority a margin of appreciation, but there are not many precedents. In cases of a person's dual identity, communication with the person and location of the person may be hindered, e.g. in cases where the person committed an offence when they present themselves with another identity elsewhere. Thus, it is only possible to verify if a person is a citizen of another State when there is no doubt that a person who claims the status of a stateless person is the same person they claim to be (para 8). Thus, the Supreme Court Senate agrees with the argument of the Office of Migration and Citizenship Affairs that "when the status of statelessness is granted to a person who does not co-operate with the authority and hides his/her identification data, a precedent is being created in Latvia that the status of a stateless person can be acquired with identity data that are not derived from documents." In its practice, the Supreme Court Senate, although citing the UNHCR Guidelines, nevertheless acknowledges: "The Senate acknowledges that the acquisition of a personal identification	Law on Stateless Persons, 2007:  https://likumi.lv/ta/en/en/id/84393-law-on-stateless-persons 08.02.2023. Judgment of the Department of Administrative Cases, case No SKA-103/2023  ECLI:LV:AT:2023:0208.A420236918.16.S

				document or proof which confirms a person’s identification data, is primarily up to and in the interest of a person himself/herself in order to claim the status of a stateless and consequently enjoy the rights granted to stateless persons by the Convention. Only the person himself/herself who has had a link with some State, including at the age of majority, knows best where to turn to clarify data about oneself and one’s legal status.” Therefore, the standard of proof is higher or no less high than in asylum cases. Both the Supreme Court Senate and OCMA link the duty to verify the applicant’s identity with the requirement for a person to be registered in the register foreseen by Article 11 of the Physical Persons Register Law and Cabinet of Ministers Regulations No 412 of the 22 June 2021 “The Procedure of Entering and Updating of Information in the Physical Persons Register”, in acknowledging that: “Since the identity of the applicant has not been determined, the argument by OCMA is justified, that by ordering to grant the applicant the status of a stateless person, OCMA would have to violate the above norms that require to substantiate information to be included in the register with proof.” This narrows the margin of appreciation of the authority in the context of Article 4 para 2. In sum, the practice is such that a more proactive effort by the applicant is expected concerning identity and other documents with the country of origin which may not be proportionate. The Supreme Court Senate, nevertheless, provides that in such cases the applicant shares the burden of proof with State authorities trying to clarify the situation and obtain documents in their home country.

SDS.6.h		Is statelessness identified in asylum procedures? Is there any guidance for officials relating to identification or determination of statelessness within asylum procedures? Is there a referral mechanism from asylum procedures to the SDP (either during or at the conclusion, if the applicant is refused asylum)?	UNHCR, Good Practices Papers – Action 6 (2020) : Efficient referral mechanisms should be established and officials who may be in contact with stateless persons trained to identify and refer potential applicants. EASO/EUAA, Practical guide on registration (2021) : The country or countries of former habitual residence should be recorded in applications for international protection to facilitate follow-up and referral to a dedicated statelessness determination procedure. Statelessness determination should be carried out only by a competent decision-making authority at an appropriate point in time following the final assessment of an asylum claim. ENS (2013) : Cross-referral systems should exist in cases where the two determination procedures (refugee and stateless) are not conducted in a joint framework.	There is no automatic referral in law or practice. A new application is needed, even though the same institution is responsible for both procedures. There is no public information available about whether decision-makers are presented with clear guidance on how to determine statelessness.	Experience of the Latvian Centre for Human Rights.
SDS.7.a	Protection during SDP (Group 1)	Does the applicant have automatic legal admission while their claim for statelessness status is assessed or is there a risk of expulsion?	UNHCR, Handbook on Protection (2014) : An individual awaiting a decision is entitled, at a minimum, to all rights based on presence and being ‘lawfully in’ the territory (including identity documents, the right to self-employment, freedom of movement, protection against expulsion). It is recommended that applicants for statelessness status receive the same treatment as asylum-seekers. ENS (2013) : States should refrain from expelling or removing an individual pending the outcome of the determination process.	There is no provision in the law regarding automatic legal admission, so the Convention should be applied in these cases. In practice, the applicant has automatic legal admission while their claim for statelessness status is assessed. Expulsion is not possible during the process. Although it is not provided for in the law, there is no ground for the application to be assessed if the person is no longer in Latvia.	Experience of the Latvian Centre for Human Rights.
SDS.7.b		Do applicants for statelessness status have permission to work and access to assistance to meet their basic needs?	UNHCR, Handbook on Protection (2014) : Allowing individuals to engage in wage-earning employment can reduce pressure on State resources and contributes to dignity and self-sufficiency. The status of those awaiting statelessness determination must reflect applicable human rights such as, assistance to meet basic needs.	No. Until the decision granting or refusing statelessness status the person’s residence in Latvia is regulated by the Immigration Law, under which a person can only be employed in Latvia if the decision on granting the status of the stateless is positive. There is no provision in law for applicants under the SDP to access support and assistance. The Law on Social Services and Social Assistance states that only foreigners who have received a permanent residence permit or have been granted the status of a permanent resident of the EU in Latvia have the right to receive social services and assistance. Under the Healthcare Financing Law, everyone is entitled to emergency medical care and the right to minimum state-funded medical care is ensured to stateless persons. In LCHR’s experience, applicants for statelessness status have been placed in municipal crises centre, which provide short-term (about six months) shelter and basic services for people in crisis. SDS.7.c		Do applicants for statelessness status face a risk of detention?	UNHCR, Handbook on Protection (2014) : Routine detention of individuals seeking protection on the grounds of statelessness is arbitrary. Detention is a measure of last resort and can only be justified where other less invasive or coercive measures have been considered and found insufficient to safeguard the lawful governmental objective pursued by detention.	The Immigration Law establishes that people can only be detained in the case of a removal procedure. SDS.8.a	Appeals (Group 1)	Is there an automatic right of appeal?	UNHCR, Handbook on Protection (2014) : An effective right to appeal against a negative first instance decision is an essential safeguard in an SDP.	The law provides for a right of appeal in case of refusal to the Head of OCMA, and then, if refused, before a court.	Law on Stateless Persons, 2007, Art. 5(3) & (4): https://likumi.lv/ta/en/en/id/84393-law-on-stateless-persons
SDS.8.b		Is legal aid available for appeals?	UNHCR, Handbook on Protection (2014) : The applicant should have access to legal counsel and, where free legal assistance is available, it should be offered to applicants without financial means. ENS (2013) : Applicants should have access to legal counsel both at first instance and on appeal.	There is no right to legal aid for the initial administrative appeal to OCMA, but there is for court proceedings. SDS.8.c		Is there a fee for the appeal application?	UNHCR, Handbook on Protection (2014) : An effective right to appeal against a negative first instance decision is an essential safeguard.	Yes. There is a fee of 60 EUR for the submission of an appeal application, but the court or judge, taking into account the financial situation of a natural person, may decrease the amount of the state fee. SDS.9.a	Statelessness status (Group 1)	Does recognition of statelessness result immediately in automatic permission to stay/legal status? If not, please describe any additional requirements, admissibility criteria, grounds for refusal or other steps required to access protection.	UNHCR, Handbook on Protection (2014) : The status granted to a stateless person in a State Party must reflect international standards. Although the 1954 Convention does not explicitly require States to grant a person determined to be stateless a right of residence, granting such permission would fulfil the object and purpose of the treaty.	Yes. Recognition of statelessness under the SDP results in the granting of statelessness status. There are no additional requirements.	Law on Stateless Persons, 2007: https://likumi.lv/ta/en/en/id/84393-law-on-stateless-persons
SDS.9.b		How long is initial status granted for and is it renewable?	UNHCR, Handbook on Protection (2014) : It is recommended that States grant recognised stateless people a residence permit valid for at least two years, although longer permits, such as five years, are preferable in the interests of stability. Permits should be renewable.	A stateless person has the right to request a temporary residence permit for a period of time not exceeding five years. A foreigner has the right to request a permanent residence permit if they have continuously resided in Latvia with a temporary residence permit for at least five years prior to the end of the term of the last temporary residence permit. This right is also dependant on whether they have acquired the official state language (Latvian). SDS.9.d		Do people recognised as stateless have a right to family reunification?	UNHCR, Handbook on Protection (2014) : Although the 1954 Convention does not address family unity, States parties are nevertheless encouraged to facilitate the reunification of those with recognised statelessness status in their territory with their spouses and dependents.	Family members must apply for a residence permit or status under the Immigration Law. There are no family reunion provisions specific to stateless people. General rules for family reunification for third-country nationals apply (in line with the EU Family Reunification Directive). SDS.9.e		On what grounds (if any) may residence status granted to stateless people be revoked? Is a proportionality assessment undertaken prior to the revocation decision, e.g. to consider respect for the right to private and family life (if applicable)?	UNHCR, Handbook on Protection (2014) : If an individual recognised as stateless subsequently acquires or reacquires the nationality of another State, they will cease to be stateless under the 1954 Convention. This may justify the cancellation of a residence permit on the basis of statelessness, although proportionality considerations under international human rights law, such as the right to a private and family life should be taken into account.	Residence status can be revoked if the person obtains a nationality, or if they provided false information and obtained the status of a stateless person unjustifiably.	Law on Stateless Persons, 2007, Art. 8: https://likumi.lv/ta/en/en/id/84393-law-on-stateless-persons

SDS.9.g	Do people granted statelessness status have access to primary, secondary, and higher education?	1954 Convention : Article 22	Yes, a stateless person has the same access to education as a national and primary education is mandatory for all in Latvia. A stateless person who resides in the Republic of Latvia legally has the rights specified in the Convention Relating to the Status of Stateless Persons of 28 September 1954. Every person regardless of age who has acquired a school report of basic education is entitled to begin acquisition of the general secondary educational programme. Detention

DET.1.a	Immigration detention	Please provide a brief overview of whether immigration detention powers are provided for in law and applied in practice, and whether alternatives to detention are considered. Please provide the legal source(s) and, if available, refer to other publications and sources of information about the law, policy, and practice on immigration detention.	ICCPR: Article 9  ECHR: Article 5  EU Return Directive: Article 15  UNHCR, Handbook on Protection (2014): Detention is a measure of last resort and can only be justified where other less invasive or coercive measures have been considered and found insufficient.  UN General Assembly (2009): Calls upon all States to adopt alternative measures to detention.  HRC, Report of the Special Rapporteur (2012): The obligation to always consider alternatives before resorting to detention should be established by law.  International Detention Coalition (2015): Immigration detention should be used only as a last resort in exceptional cases after all other options have been shown to be inadequate in the individual case.	Section 51 of the Immigration Law and Section 16 of the Asylum Law regulate immigration detention. The Asylum Law provides that restrictive measures shall be applied taking into account the individual circumstances of the case and the principle of proportionality. There is currently only one alternative to detention: regular registration with the State Border Guard. Article 51 of the Immigration Law allows for detention on grounds other than the violation of the obligation to register with the State Border Guard, implying indirectly that the obligation to register shall be imposed first. However, there is no clear provision stating that detention should be a measure of last resort. According to Section 16 of the Asylum Law, an asylum seeker may be detained if: 1) it is necessary to ascertain or verify the person’s identity or nationality; 2) it is necessary to ascertain the facts on which the asylum application is based; 3) it is necessary to decide on the person’s right to enter Latvia; 4) there are grounds for assuming that the person submitted an application to hinder their removal; 5) the competent authorities (including the Border Guard) have reason to believe that the asylum seeker presents a threat to national security or public order and safety; 6) detention is necessary for a transfer procedure in accordance with the EU Dublin Regulation According to Section 51(2), the Border Guard may detain a non-national if there are grounds to believe that the person will avoid or impede a removal procedure or there is a risk of absconding—a determination that is based on any of the following criteria: the individual 1) fails to disclose their identity, provides false information, or refuses to cooperate; 2) crosses the external border, avoiding border checks and using forged documents; 3) fails to indicate a place that they will reside while awaiting a removal procedure; 4) threatens security, public order, or safety; 5) promotes undocumented immigration; 6) has been convicted for a criminal offence punishable with a prison sentence of at least one year; 7) has previously avoided a removal procedure; 8) unjustifiably fails to abide by a voluntary return decision; 9) fails to register with the Border Guard; 10) leaves an accommodation centre; or 11) violates a re-entry ban. Alternatives to detention are rarely applied in practice. According to the State Border Guard, 721 asylum seekers were detained from 1 January - 30 November 2023. Among the detainees there was no stateless person.	Imigrācijas likums (Immigration Law), 2017, Section 51: https://likumi.lv/ta/id/68522-imigrācijas-likums (LV) Asylum Law, 2017, Sections 13, 14, &amp; 16: https://likumi.lv/ta/en/en/id/278986-asylum-law Noteikumi par ārzemnieka piespiedu izraidīšanu, izceļošanas dokumentu un tā izsniegšanu (Regulations Regarding Forced Return of Foreigners, Standard Travel Document and the Issue Thereof), 2011: https://likumi.lv/ta/id/232351-noteikumi-par-arzemnieka-piespiedu-izraidisanu-izcelosanas-dokumentu-un-ta-izsniegšanu (LV) Latvian Centre for Human Rights (2015) The return of Third Country Nationals: Standards and their Implementation in Latvia: http://cilvektiesibas.org.lv/media/attachments/01/12/2015/Latvian_report_korekturai_COR_NEWNEW.pdf State Border Guard (Valsts robežsardze), Letter to Latvian Centre for Human Rights (Latvijas Cilvēktiesību centrs) No.23.1-1/1156, 16 March 2017 Immigration Detention in Latvia: Giving “Accommodation” a Whole New Meaning (2019)  https://www.globaldetentionproject.org/immigration-detention-latvia-giving-accommodation-whole-new-meaning State Border Guard (Valsts robežsardze), Letter to the Latvian Centre for Human Rights (Latvijas Cilvēktiesību centrs) No Nr..23.1-8.16/5155, 5 December 2023.

PRS.1.a	Naturalisation	In what timeframe do stateless people who are residing on the territory acquire the right to apply for naturalisation, and how does this compare to others with a foreign nationality?	1954 Convention : Article 32 UNHCR, Good Practices Papers – Action 6 (2020) : It is recommended that States Parties facilitate, as far as possible, the naturalisation of stateless persons. CoE Committee of Ministers, Recommendation No. R (99) 18 (1999) : Each State should facilitate the acquisition of its nationality by stateless persons lawfully and habitually resident on its territory. ENS (2013) : The main benchmark is if there is any preferential treatment for stateless people compared to the general rules applied to those with a foreign nationality.	The residence requirement for stateless persons is five years' permanent residence. An interruption of one year in total is permitted, but not during the last year. The total time required for stateless persons to acquire the right to apply for naturalisation is therefore ten years: five years as a stateless person plus five years of permanent residence. Other persons with a foreign nationality may apply for naturalisation in the following terms: a. If spouse of a Latvian citizen or non-citizen, the person can apply for a residence permit for one year, then for four years, then for permanent residence (same applies for children); b. any other foreigner must apply for temporary residence each year for five years running, then the person may apply for a permanent residence permit or EU resident status in Latvia and after five years' permanent residence the person can apply for naturalisation. Thus, the total time for other foreigners is also ten years.	Citizenship Law, 2013, Art 12(1)(1) & (5): https://likumi.lv/ta/en/en/id/57512
PRS.1.b		Are there requirements relating to 'good character' or previous criminal convictions that could prevent some stateless people from naturalising? If yes, please describe.	CoE Committee of Ministers, Recommendation No. R (99) 18 (1999) : States should ensure that offences, when relevant for the decision concerning the acquisition of nationality, do not unreasonably prevent stateless persons seeking the nationality of a state.	Yes, criminal convictions are a bar to naturalisation, but there is an exemption if the conviction has been rendered without complying with the principle of fair trial or of proportionality of the punishment as specified by Cabinet of Ministers. There is no good character clause.	Citizenship Law, 2013, Section 11: https://likumi.lv/ta/en/en/id/57512
PRS.1.c		Are there exemptions for stateless people from any nationality or integration test, language, income or fee requirements for naturalisation? Please describe the requirements and cost of the procedure for stateless adults and children, and any direct or indirect barriers to naturalisation caused by discriminatory laws, policies, or practices.	1954 Convention : Article 32 UNHCR, Good Practices Papers – Action 6 (2020) : It is recommended that States Parties facilitate, as far as possible, the naturalisation of stateless persons. CoE Committee of Ministers, Recommendation No. R (99) 18 (1999) : Each State should facilitate the acquisition of its nationality by stateless persons lawfully and habitually resident on its territory. UNHCR, Background Note on Discrimination in Nationality Laws and Statelessness (2021) : States should remove or amend discriminatory legal provisions, rules, policies, or practices that directly or indirectly act as barriers to naturalisation.	Requirements for naturalisation include Latvian language proficiency, knowledge of the basic principles of the Constitution, national anthem, basics of Latvian history and culture, legal source of income, and confirmation the person does not have the nationality of another country. There are no exemptions for stateless persons. The only exemption is applied generally to persons over 65 years who do not need to complete the written part of the test (essay). The naturalisation fee is 28.64 EUR. There are certain categories of persons who are exempt from naturalisation fees, including persons with severe disability, orphans, children who have remained without parental care, etc. There is also a reduced naturalisation fee of 4.27 EUR for certain categories of persons, namely persons in need, registered unemployed, family members with three or more minor children, pensioners, persons with medium and minor disability, and certain categories of students. Under the Citizenship Law, a child born in Latvia after 21 August 1991 shall be recognised as a Latvian citizen at birth registration if one parent expresses such a wish and provided that both parents are stateless/non-citizens. The parent must have permanent residence in Latvia. A child shall also be recognised as Latvian citizen at birth if the child's mother is a non-citizen or stateless and there is no information about the father in the civil register, or if one of the child's parents is a non-citizen or stateless, but the other parent is deceased.  Until the child reaches 15, one parent can apply for the child to be recognised as a Latvian citizen, provided that: 1) The child has been non-citizen or stateless since birth; 2) The child's permanent residence is in Latvia; 3) Both the child's parents are non-citizens or stateless;	Citizenship Law, 2013, Section 3(1): https://likumi.lv/ta/en/en/id/57512  Law on Terminating the Granting of Non-Citizen Status to Children, 2019 [Par nepilsoņa statusa piešķiršanas izbeigšanu bērniem]: https://likumi.lv/ta/id/310468-par-nepilsona-statusa-pieskirsanas-izbeigšanu-berniem (LV)

The child may register themselves if aged 15 to 18. A document certifying the child's birth, a parent's or both the parents' passports as well as a child's identity document, if available, should also be submitted to OCMA or the consular authorities in Latvia (unless in English, German, French or Russian). PRS.7.b		Are there particular sections of the population - such as minority groups or people affected by conflict - believed to be stateless/at risk of statelessness? Please provide details and source of information.	1961 Convention : Article 9 UNHCR, Global Action Plan to End Statelessness 2014-24 (2014) : Action 4 HRC, Recommendations of the Forum on Minority Issues (2019) : States should take legislative, administrative and policy measures aimed at eliminating statelessness affecting minorities.	Yes. Government data for 'stateless' and 'non-citizen' populations is disaggregated by ethnicity.  On 1 January 2024, there were 1,923 non-citizen children under 18 (aged 4-17).  Data on stateless persons by ethnic origin status: 94 are Russian, 15 - Ukrainian, 7 - Belarusian, 10 - Roma, 4 -Armenian, 1 - Polish, 2 - Azeri, 1 - Avar, 1 - Jewish, 2 - Georgian, 1 - Greek, 1 - Iranian, 1 - Kyrgyz, 1 - Moldovan, 2 - Latvian, 2 - Lithuanian, 1 - Lezgin, 2 - Chechen, 1 - Udmurt, 1 - Uzbek, 1- Tsakhur, 6 – 'unchosen', 2 – 'unknown'.  According to the Office of Citizenship and Migration Affairs, there are 180,455 'non-citizens' in Latvia. Data on 'non-citizens' (as well as other citizenship categories) is disaggregated in the Register of Natural Persons by 'ethnic origin'.  On 1 January 2024, of the 180,455 Latvian 'non-citizens': 118,546 were Russian, 25,000 Belarussian, 18,016 Ukrainian, 6,475 Polish, 4,235 Lithuanian, 1,177 Jewish, 801 Tatar, 635 Moldovan, 582 Armenian, 541 Azeri, 403 Latvian, etc. Some 'ethnicity' categories overlap with 'national origin' e.g. Afghan, Algerian, American etc. Some categories may capture stateless people who have not been recognised under the SDP. There are also people with 'unknown' ethnic origin (53), and nationality 'not chosen' (625).  According to the Central Statistical Board, in 2023, there were 1,883,008 inhabitants in Latvia, Of those, citizens of Latvia – 1,621,208 or 86,1%, non-citizens 175,401 or 9,3%, others – 86,399 or 4,6% (including 31,209 – citizens of Russia; 23,770 – citizens of Ukraine)-, stateless people 140.2  Persons by ethnicity and legal status (OCMA)	Office of Citizenship and Migration Affairs, Latvijas iedzīvotāju sadalījums pēc nacionālā sastāva un valstiskās piederības ( Distribution of Latvia's population by nationality and citizenship ), 1 January 2024 https://www.pmlp.gov.lv/lv/media/11043/download?attachment (LV)  Croft, Jennifer. PRS.8.a	Deprivation of nationality	Are there any provisions on deprivation of nationality that could render a person stateless? Please state whether there is a safeguard against statelessness established in law and on what grounds deprivation of nationality may result in statelessness (e.g. national security, fraud, etc.).	1961 Convention : Article 8 & 9 ECN : Article 7(3) UDHR : Article 15(2) Principles on Deprivation of Nationality and the Draft Commentary : Principle 2.2: Deprivation of nationality refers to any loss, withdrawal or denial of nationality that was not voluntarily requested by the individual; Principles 4, 5 & 6 HRC, Report of the Secretary-General on Human Rights and Arbitrary Deprivation of Nationality (2009) : para. 23 UNHCR Guidelines on Statelessness No.5 (2020) : the prohibition of arbitrary deprivation of nationality also includes situations where there is no formal act by a State but where the practice of its competent authorities clearly shows that they have ceased to consider a particular individual/group as national(s) (e.g. where authorities persistently refuse to issue or renew documents without providing an explanation or justification). ILEC Guidelines (2015) : Deprivation of nationality must have a firm legal basis, should not be interpreted extensively or applied by analogy and deprivation-provisions must be predictable.	Yes. The law provides for renunciation and revocation of nationality under certain circumstances including (in the case of revocation): acquiring nationality of another country without submitting an application for renunciation of Latvian citizenship (safeguard against statelessness); serving voluntarily in the armed forces of another country without permission (with exceptions; safeguard against statelessness); acquisition/restoration of Latvian citizenship by naturalisation by deception (if held for less than ten years, unless criminal conviction; no safeguard against statelessness); action promoting violent overthrow of the Government (safeguard against statelessness). Deprivation of nationality must be carried out in pursuance of a legitimate purpose, provided for by law, necessary, proportionate and in accordance with procedural safeguards; Principle 8: Everyone has the right to a fair trial or hearing and to an effective remedy and reparation. ILEC Guidelines (2015) : The consequences of a decision to deprive somebody of their nationality must be assessed against the principle of proportionality. Adequate procedural safeguards are essential. Decisions should only take effect when the (judicial) decision cannot be challenged anymore.	The Office of Citizenship and Migration Affairs (OCMA) is the competent authority. The law provides for a right of appeal to the Head of OCMA, and then the administrative court. Yes. One of the grounds for deprivation of Latvian citizenship is ‘action promoting violent overthrow of the Government’, although there is a safeguard against statelessness in such cases. No information is available on practice.  On 21 April 2022, the Citizenship Law was amended to broaden the circumstances in which a person can be deprived of Latvian nationality. The amendments were adopted in response to the Russian invasion in Ukraine.  Article 24 (1) 5 foresees that the citizenship of Latvia will be revoked if a person has participated in or provided substantial financial, material, propagandist, technological or other support to states or persons who have carried out certain activities, including genocide, crimes against peace, crimes against humanity, war crimes that undermine or threaten the territorial integrity, sovereignty and independence of democratic states or a constitutional facility. RES.1.a	Published judgments	Please list the most relevant judgments relating to statelessness and include links to the cases (where available).		In 2023, there was one judgement relating to stateless persons (bezvalstnieks). On 8 February 2023 the Department of Administrative Affairs of the Senate cancelled the judgment of the Administrative Regional Court, which satisfied the applicant's claim and recognised that he is entitled to the status of a stateless person. The Senate, upon examining the cassation complaint of the Office of Citizenship and Migration Affairs (OCMA), concluded that the regional court did not comprehensively, completely and objectively examine all the evidence in the case. In the given case, a foreigner requests the court to grant him the status of a stateless person. The person does not have any identity document to prove who he is. There is only the person's own story about their origin and their life. OCMA refused to grant statelessness status because the applicant's identity is unknown. Thus, the institution cannot make sure that the applicant is not or cannot be a citizen of another country. The Senate states that the court needs to objectively find out the identity data of the applicant in order to be able to conclude that the applicant does not have and is not guaranteed citizenship of any country. The applicant is obliged to be truthful, to the extent possible, to provide complete information about himself, to provide all reasonable possible evidence. The adjudicating authority must also obtain all reasonably possible evidence to objectively determine the claimant's status. The Senate found that the judgment did not indicate whether or what the applicant had done to find out their identity details or the status while he stayed in Nepal and India, given that the court had found that a person with that name had attended school in Nepal, such a school actually exists, but in India the applicant was issued an identification card. Upon linguistic verification he was found to be speaking Tibetan. The Senate states that obtaining a personal identification document or evidence confirming personal identification data is primarily up to the person themselves and in their interest, so that they can apply for a statelessness status and accordingly exercise the rights guaranteed to a stateless person by the UN Convention. Only a person who has had contact with a country, including as an adult, knows best where to turn for information about themselves and their legal status. The Senate also recognized as reasonable OCMA's argument that clarifying a person's identity is also a matter of national security, because according to the Convention, a stateless person enjoys both the right to obtain travel documents and to travel to another country and the right to naturalize, which further grants the person the same rights as citizens of the country of naturalisation. On 9 June 2022, the Grand Chamber of the European Court of Human Rights held in the case of Savickis and Others v Latvia that	Anonymised judgments are accessible online by keywords, phrases, ECLI identifier, case number, type of case (criminal, civil, administrative), but should be reviewed to establish whether 'statelessness' / 'non-citizen' are mentioned in passing, or adjudicated:  https://manas.tiesas.lv/eTiesasMvc/lv/nolemumi The Constitutional Court of the Republic of Latvia, Riga, March 7, 2005 JUDGMENT in the name of the Republic of Latvia in case No 2004-15-0106, Para 15.: http://www.satv.tiesa.gov.lv/wp-content/uploads/2004/07/2004-15-0106_Spriedums_ENG.pdf SKA – 472/2008, 3 October 2008 (Supreme Court Judgment): https://www.tiesas.lv/nolemumi/pdf/11451.pdf (LV) Senate Administrative Case Department. 				there had not been a violation of the prohibition of discrimination under Article 14 of the European Convention on Human Rights. The case concerns the alleged discriminatory nature of Latvian rules applicable to the calculation of the State pensions of permanently resident non-citizens of Latvia as contrasted with Latvian citizens. Under the Latvian law, the calculation of the amount of such non-citizens’ pensions largely excludes periods of work done up to 1991 in other territories of the former Soviet Union, outside Latvian territory. However, such periods are included for the calculation of the pensions of Latvian citizens. The ECtHR was asked to examine the contested Latvian legislation under the prohibition of discrimination in conjunction with the right to property (Articles 14 ECHR and 1 of Protocol No.1 to the ECHR). In Andrejeva v. Latvia [GC], 2009, the Court found this difference of treatment to amount to a breach of Article 14 taken in conjunction with Article 1 of Protocol no.1. In February 2011 the Constitutional Court declared the impugned provision compatible with the Constitution and the Convention. It admitted that the legislator had established different principles in respect of Latvian nationals and “non-citizens”, and that these two groups were treated differently when calculating the overall period of employment. However, it drew a clear distinction between Andrejeva and the present case, as Ms Andrejeva had resided in the territory of Latvia over the disputed periods. In contrast, the applicants had worked outside the territory of Latvia for various periods and could not have acquired legal ties with Latvia. Having examined, inter alia, the question of State continuity, and noting that Latvia was not the successor of the rights and obligations of the Soviet Union, it found that the difference had objective and reasonable grounds. The ECtHR concluded that the impugned difference in treatment had been consistent with the legitimate aims pursued (of protection Latvia’s constitutional identity based on the State continuity doctrine and its economic system) and the grounds relied upon by the Latvian authorities to justify it could be deemed to amount to very weighty reasons. Accordingly, the respondent State had not overstepped its margin of appreciation with regard to the applicants and the Court had to reach a different conclusion from that of the Andrejeva case so far as it concerns employment periods completed outside, and before establishing any link with, Latvia. The Court found no violation of Article 14.
