Statelessness Determination and Status

Cat	Q	Sub	Subtheme	Question	International Norms & Good Practice	Answer	Source
SDS	1	a	Definition of a stateless person	Is there a definition of a stateless person in national law? Do the definition and exclusion provisions align with the 1954 Convention? Please provide details.	UN Convention Relating to the Status of Stateless Persons, 1954: Articles 1(1) & 1(2).	No, there is no definition in national law. In principle the 1954 Convention definition applies, and the SEM applies Art. 1(1) 1954 Convention directly. However, according to Swiss interpretation, stateless persons must have lost their nationality through no fault of their own and have no means of reinstating it to be recognised, which differs from the 1954 Convention. All persons who, allegedly, would have the possibility of receiving assistance from another UN agency are excluded from the definition. Swiss Courts have held this interpretation to be compatible with the 1954 Convention. Moreover, recognition as a stateless person requires demonstration of an interest worthy of protection (schutzwürdiges Interesse), i.e. the applicant must substantiate that they would be in a better position if recognised as stateless. The practice of the SEM in this regard is very restrictive. In its third cycle of Universal Periodic Review Switzerland accepted a recommendation by Hungary to ensure that the definition of a stateless person is fully consistent with the 1954 Convention. SDS	2	b	Are there clear, accessible instructions on how to make a claim of statelessness?	UNHCR (2014): For procedures to be fair and efficient, access must be ensured (dissemination of info, targeted info campaigns, counselling on the procedures, etc.). UNHCR (2016): Information on the procedure and counselling services must be available to potential applicants in a language they understand.	There is little information on how to make a claim besides a guidance document published by the SEM. This information is, however, very difficult to access for individuals as it is aimed at government officials and uses very technical language. There is no public awareness-raising to facilitate access to the procedure. In November 2019, humanrights.ch in collaboration with UNCHR Switzerland published a model application for statelessness determination. The model form is mainly targeted at lawyers and NGOs advising stateless persons in the application procedure, but it can also be used by stateless persons directly. 				State authorities to initiate a procedure.
SDS	2	f	Are there obligations in law on authorities to consider the application?	UNHCR (2016): Access to the SDP must be guaranteed.	Yes, if an application has been submitted it has to be considered by the authority responsible. If it is formally correct, the merits must be considered.	Article 29 Swiss Constitution: https://www.admin.ch/opc/en/classi fied- compilation/19995395/index.html#a 29 (EN) Article 29 Administrative Procedure Act https://www.admin.ch/opc/en/classi fied- compilation/19680294/index.html#a 29 (EN)
SDS	2	g	Is there an application fee?	UNHCR (2016): Access to the SDP must be guaranteed.	In principle, the procedure is free of charge. However, there may be costs for certain services related to the procedure, e.g. the issuance of a residence permit or a document.	No legal basis, not explicitly stated in the instruction.
SDS	2	h	Is there a lawful stay requirement to access the SDP?	UNHCR (2016): Access to the procedure needs to be open to anyone regardless of lawful stay or residence. ENS (2013): There is no basis in the 1954 Convention for requiring lawful stay.	No, there is no requirement for lawful stay to access the SDP, but there is a dispute in legal scholarship as to whether a person recognised as stateless is only granted a residence permit if he or she has been staying lawfully. This has so far not been decided in court. Swiss law does not grant a right to stay during the SDP. In practice, recognised stateless persons do not seem to have difficulties obtaining a residence permit. SDS	2	k		Is there cooperation between agencies that may have contact with stateless people to refer cases for status determination?	UNHCR (2016): Cooperation between actors working on statelessness and the various government agencies involved in determining statelessness is good practice. SDS	3	c	What measures are in place to guarantee substantive equality for women, children and other groups (e.g. disabled people, older people, LGBTQI people, etc.) at risk of discrimination in the SDP?	UNHCR (2014): Due to discrimination, women might face additional barriers in acquiring documentation (e.g. birth certificates or other identification documents). Children may face acute challenges in communicating basic facts with respect to their nationality. States must follow the principle of the best interests of the child. Gen. Rec. 32, CEDAW: Nationality laws may discriminate directly or indirectly against women. Legislative provisions that appear gender neutral may in practice have a disproportionate and negative impact on the enjoyment of the right to nationality by women.	Other than for example in the asylum procedure, there is no explicit legal provision addressing the specific protection needs and evidentiary challenges for women and children. There is no information available as to whether this is in practice also done in statelessness procedures.	For the situation in the Asylum Procedure see Article 17(2) Asylum Act https://www.admin.ch/opc/fr/classified- compilation/19994776/index.html#a 6 (EN) and Article 6 Ordonnance on the Asylum Procedure https://www.admin.ch/opc/fr/classified- compilation/19994776/index.html#a 6 (FR), as well as the relevant SEM Instruction https://www.sem.admin.ch/dam/dat a/sem/asyl/verfahren/hb/d/hb-d7- f.pdf (FR)

SDS	4	а	Procedural safeguards	Is free legal aid available during the procedure?	UNHCR (2014): Applicants should have access to legal counsel; where free legal assistance is available, it should be offered to applicants without financial means. ENS (2013): If state funded legal aid is available, it should be provided to stateless claimants. If there is no state funded legal aid but asylum claimants can access free legal aid free of charge, the same level of access should be provided to stateless people.	In principle, free legal aid and representation is available both at first instance and appeals stage. It is, however, conditional on the person concerned not having sufficient means and the case having some prospect of success. In practice, free legal aid is virtually never granted in first instance procedures with the SEM and the legislator has not recognised the need for free legal aid in SDP, although it has done so in relation to first instance asylum procedures. In the recent case of F-4576/2017, 2 July 2018, the Federal Administrative Court confirmed that due to the complexity of the statelessness determination procedure the applicants are entitled to claim free legal representation. SDS	4	90	Is there a timeframe for the SDP set in law or policy and is it complied with in practice?	UNHCR (2014): It is undesirable for a first instance decision to be issued more than six months from submission of an application. In exceptional circumstances it may be appropriate to allow the proceedings to last up to 12 months.	No, there is no fixed timeframe. The general constitutional procedural right to have a case decided within a reasonable time however also applies to the SDP. In practice the duration of a procedure can vary between several days and several years. The link with the asylum procedure is also clarified in the SEM instruction and can also impact on length of the procedure. SDS	4	h		Is there a referral mechanism from refugee status determination procedures to the statelessness procedure (e.g. if refused asylum)?	UNHCR (2016): Efficient referral mechanisms should be established and officials who may be in contact with stateless persons trained to identify and refer potential applicants. ENS (2013): Cross-referral systems should exist in cases where the two determination procedures (refugee and stateless) are not conducted in a joint framework.	In general administrative law an authority must refer a person to the competent authority and procedure. However, this obligation exists only once an application has been formally lodged. If, however, only an unsubstantiated claim is made during the asylum procedure there is no obligation to formally refer the case to the right authority. In such a situation the person might informally be made aware of the possibility to lodge an application for statelessness determination. This is also possible because the SEM is responsible for both asylum and statelessness claims. SDS	5	а	Protection during SDP	Does the applicant have automatic legal admission while their claim for stateless status is assessed or is there a risk of expulsion?	UNHCR (2014): An individual awaiting a decision is entitled, at a minimum, to all rights based on presence in the territory as well as 'lawfully in' rights (including identity papers, the right to self-employment, freedom of movement, protection against expulsion). It is recommended that individuals receive the same treatment as asylum-seekers. ENS (2013): States should refrain from expelling or removing an individual pending the outcome of the determination process.	No, there is no automatic legal admission or status during the procedure. For that reason, expulsion is possible during the process. So far, there are no verified reports of such incidents.

SDS	6	a	Appeals	Is there an automatic right of appeal?	UNHCR (2014): An effective right to appeal against a negative first instance decision is an essential safeguard in an SDP.	Yes, there is a right of appeal in case of a refusal. The decision of the SEM can be appealed to the Federal Administrative Court (FAC) and thereafter to the Federal Tribunal (FT). SDS	6	d		Is there any evidence of significant errors in decision-making?		No systematic evaluation of the decisions of the SEM or the courts is available. SEM decisions are not publicly available. The decisions of the Federal Administrative Court and the Federal Tribunal are published. No civil society organisation or academic has systematically reviewed the decisions as there is very little academic research on statelessness.
SDS	7	a	Stateless status	Does recognition of statelessness result immediately in automatic permission to stay/legal status? If not, please describe any additional requirements.	UNHCR (2014): The status granted to a stateless person in a State Party must reflect international standards. Although the 1954 Convention does not explicitly require States to grant a person determined to be stateless a right of residence, granting such permission would fulfil the object and purpose of the treaty.	No, people recognised as stateless have the right to be granted a residence permit, but the status is not granted automatically upon recognition but upon application for a residence permit. This is also because the residence permit is issued by the cantonal authorities and not by the SEM. The application must be made with the authorities of the canton of residence. There are no specific family reunification provisions for recognised stateless persons, only those that apply to foreigners in general. Recognised stateless persons with a residence permit can apply but the decision is discretionary. The application has to be made within five years, within one year for children over 12 (Art. 47 FNA). Family reunification requires that the family lives together, has appropriate housing and does not receive social security. Stateless persons with a permanent residence permit have the right to family reunification (non-discretionary) if they plan on living together. Stateless persons that have only temporary admission can only apply for family reunification after three years if they live together, have appropriate housing and do not depend on social security, i.e. have sufficient income. SDS	7	е	9	On what grounds (if any) may residence status granted to stateless people be revoked?	UNHCR (2014): If an individual recognised as stateless subsequently acquires or reacquires the nationality of another State, they will cease to be stateless under the 1954 Convention. This may justify the cancellation of a residence permit on the basis of statelessness, although proportionality considerations under international human rights law, such as the right to a private and family life should be taken into account.	The grounds for revocation are listed in Article 31(2) Foreign Nationals Act. Grounds for revocation are a long-term custodial sentence or the violation or threat to public security, order or internal or external safety. It is disputed in legal scholarship whether the general grounds for revocation of a residence permit according to Articles 62 and 63 Foreign Nationals Act additionally apply. This would include e.g. revocation for noncompliance with an order or for depending on social security. The question has so far not been decided in court. If the (permanent) residence permit is revoked a stateless person is granted temporary admission. SDS	7	h		Do people granted stateless status have access to social security and healthcare?	UN Convention Relating to the Status of Stateless Persons, 1954: Articles 23 & 24 UNHCR (2014): The right to work, access to healthcare and social assistance, as well as a travel document must accompany a residence permit.	should in principle be accessible on the same basis as for nationals (there may be some minor fees). SDS	8	а	Access to nationality	In what timeframe do stateless people acquire the right to apply for naturalisation and how does this compare to others with a foreign nationality?	UN Convention Relating to the Status of Stateless Persons, 1954: Article 32 UNHCR (2016): It is recommended that States Parties facilitate, as far as possible, the naturalisation of stateless persons. Council of Europe Committee of Ministers (1999): Each State should facilitate the acquisition of its nationality by stateless persons lawfully and habitually resident on its territory. ENS (2013): The main benchmark is if there is any preferential treatment for stateless people compared to the general rules applied to those with a foreign nationality.	Stateless persons are able to naturalise by way of ordinary naturalisation (Article 9 ff Nationality Act). Simplified naturalisation is possible for stateless children as well as for stateless persons married to a Swiss national (Article 20 ff Nationality Act). The timeframe for an ordinary naturalisation on federal level is ten years of legal residence with a residence permit (Article 9(1)(b) and 33 Nationality Act). Temporary admission is only counted half. The time spent during an asylum procedure is not counted (Article 33 Nationality Act). Moreover, according to the new law adopted in 2014, only persons with a permanent residence permit can apply for naturalisation (Article 9(1)(a) Nationality Act). The Swiss ordinary naturalisation procedure is made even more complicated as the Cantons and Municipalities may introduce their own	Article 9 Nationality Act (2014) https://www.admin.ch/opc/fr/official -compilation/2016/2561.pdf (FR) Article 12(3) Nationality Act (2014) https://www.admin.ch/opc/fr/official -compilation/2016/2561.pdf (FR) Article 18 Nationality Act (2014) https://www.admin.ch/opc/fr/official -compilation/2016/2561.pdf (FR) Article 33 Nationality Act (2014) https://www.admin.ch/opc/fr/official -compilation/2016/2561.pdf (FR) The Nationality Act sets out minimum requirements; Art. 38(2) Federal Constitution of the Swiss Confederation: "It [the Confederation] shall legislate on the minimum requirements for the naturalisation of foreign nationals by the Cantons and grant naturalisation permits."

					requirements relating to the required residence period and the level of integration required for a naturalisation (Articles 12(3), 15 and 18 Nationality Act). There is an accelerated (simplified) naturalisation procedure for stateless children (under 18), who may apply after a legal stay of five years (one of which must be the year preceding the application), if "integrated" (i.e. respect for public security and order and constitutional values, and able to communicate in daily life orally and written in one of the national languages, and not dependent on social security). There are no additional cantonal requirements. Other than required by Article 32 of the 1954 Convention there is no simplified naturalisation for adult stateless persons. SDS	8	b	Are there requirements relating to 'good character' or previous criminal convictions that could prevent some stateless people from accessing nationality? If yes, please describe.	Council of Europe Committee of Ministers (1999): States should ensure that offences, when relevant for the decision concerning the acquisition of nationality, do not unreasonably prevent stateless persons seeking the nationality of a state.	Yes, naturalisation requires that the person concerned observes public order and security (Article 11 in conjunction with 12(1)(a) Nationality Act). Moreover, the applicant may not constitute a threat to the internal or external security of Switzerland (Article 11 Nationality Act). Naturalisation is thus excluded if the person has been sentenced to a custodial sentence for a felony or misdemeanours. In case of minor misdemeanours or contraventions the authority has discretion to allow the naturalisation. There is also a good character clause, requiring that the person respects the constitutional values of Switzerland,	Criminal convictions: Article 12(1)(a) Nationality Act (2014) https://www.admin.ch/opc/fr/official -compilation/2016/2561.pdf (FR) in conjunction with Article 4 Ordonnance on Swiss Nationality https://www.admin.ch/opc/fr/official -compilation/2016/2577.pdf(FR) Good character: Article 12(1)(b) Nationality Act (2014) https://www.admin.ch/opc/fr/official -compilation/2016/2561.pdf (FR) in conjunction with Article 5 Ordonnance on Swiss Nationality https://www.admin.ch/opc/fr/official -compilation/2016/2577.pdf (FR)

SDS	8 c		Are there exemptions for stateless people from any nationality or integration test, language, income or fee requirements? Please describe the requirements and cost of the procedure for stateless people.	UN Convention Relating to the Status of Stateless Persons, 1954: Article 32 UNHCR (2016): It is recommended that States Parties facilitate, as far as possible, the naturalisation of stateless persons. Council of Europe Committee of Ministers (1999): Each State should facilitate the acquisition of its nationality by stateless persons lawfully and habitually resident on its territory.	including fundamental principles of the rule of law, the democratic constitutional order and fundamental rights (Article 12(1)(b) Nationality Act). The examination of the naturalisation criteria is done by the cantonal authorities. They can conduct a nationality or integration test. Federal law requires language skills on level B1 orally and A2 written of one of the national languages (Article 12(1)(c) Nationality Act and Article 6 Ordonnance on Swiss Nationality). The cantons can set higher language requirements (Article 12(3) Nationality Act). Exemptions are only granted for persons who cannot fulfil the criteria due to a disability or illness or other grave personal circumstances (e.g. age, illiteracy) (Article 12(2) Nationality Act). There is no specific level of income required but the applicant must not be dependent on social security. This also applies to stateless persons. The costs for ordinary naturalisation are threefold. The fees at federal level are 100 CHF for an adult and 50 CHF for minors. In addition to the fees at federal level, applicants must pay fees at the cantonal and municipal levels which vary significantly. DET	1	b		Does domestic law allow immigration detention for purposes other than those listed under ECHR 5(1)(f)?	ECHR Article 5(1)(f)	The grounds for detention listed in Articles 73-78 FNA go beyond ECHR 5(1)(FR) and include grounds provided for in ECHR 5(1)(b), in particular coercive detention according to Article 78 FNA. The Federal Tribunal has held the coercive detention to be compatible with ECHR 5(1)(b) even though this is highly controversial in legal scholarship. DET	1	С		Does a proposed country of removal need to be identified before a person is detained for removal? Please describe the situation in law and in practice.	ICCPR Article 7: Repeated attempts to expel a person to a country that refuses to admit them could amount to inhuman or degrading treatment. Auad v Bulgaria ECtHR (2011): The only issue is whether the authorities were sufficiently diligent in their efforts to deport the applicant. EU Returns Directive: Any detention shall only be maintained as long as removal arrangements are in progress and executed with due diligence.	No, not necessarily. Coercive detention, for example, can also be ordered in case the country of removal has not yet been determined. Equally, detention pending deportation can already be ordered while the authorities are establishing the identity of the person concerned and also a possible country of removal. UN Human Rights Council (2010): A maximum period of detention must be established by law and upon expiry the detainee must be automatically released. UNHCR (2012): To guard against arbitrariness, maximum periods of detention should be set in national law. EU Returns Directive: Article 15(5) Equal Rights Trust (2012): Detention should always be for the shortest time possible.	Yes. Immigration detention of adults can be ordered for a maximum of 6 months and it can be extended for a further period of up to 12 months where the person does not cooperate with the authorities. The maximum period for detention under Articles 75 and 76 FNA is therefore 18 months as also foreseen in the EU Return Directive. For children age 15-18, the maximum period is 6 months and may be extended by up to 6 months for a total of 12 months. Cat	Q	Sub	Subtheme	Question	International Norms & Good Practice	Answer	Source
PRS	1	а	Stateless born on territory	Is there a provision in law for stateless children born on the territory to be granted nationality? [If yes, continue to PRS1b. If no, proceed to PRS1h]	UN Convention on the Reduction of Statelessness, 1961: Article 1 European Convention on Nationality, 1997: Article 2 Convention on the Rights of the Child 1989: Article 7 Committee on the Rights of Migrant Workers and Members of their Families & Committee on the Rights of the Child (2017): States should strengthen measures to grant nationality to children born in their territory in situations where they would otherwise be stateless. European Parliament (2018): The EU and its MS should ensure that childhood statelessness is adequately addressed in national laws in full compliance with Article 7 CRC.	Yes, there is a provision in law allowing for simplified naturalisation of stateless children in Switzerland. It does not however depend on the child being born in Switzerland but on the requirement of five years of residence, among others (see also answer to IDP 9a and 9b above). Thus, there is no specific safeguard for children born stateless in Switzerland.	Article 38(3) Swiss Constitution: https://www.admin.ch/opc/en/classi fied- compilation/19995395/index.html#a 38 (EN) Article 23 Nationality Act (2014): https://www.admin.ch/opc/fr/official -compilation/2016/2561.pdf (FR)
PRS	1	b		Is the provision for otherwise stateless children to acquire nationality automatic or non-automatic (i.e. by application)?	UNHCR (2012): The 1961 Convention provides Contracting States with two alternatives for granting nationality to otherwise stateless children born in their territory: either automatic acquisition upon birth or upon application. ENS (2015): The 1961 Convention and the ECN oblige the conferral of nationality to otherwise stateless children born on the territory. The optimal method is to grant nationality automatically at birth.	Yes, there is a non-automatic possibility of access to nationality by application through the so-called simplified naturalisation. For simplified naturalisation the child must have five years' legal residence, one year of which must be immediately prior to the application. Moreover, the child must be integrated in Switzerland (Article 23 in conjunction with Article 20 in conjunction with Article 12 Nationality Act). According to Article 12 Nationality Act and the Nationality Ordonnance, a person is successfully integrated if they respect public security and order, and constitutional values, can communicate in daily life orally and in writing in one of the	Article 38(3) Swiss Constitution: https://www.admin.ch/opc/en/classi fied- compilation/19995395/index.html#a 38 (EN) Article 23 in conjunction with Article 20 in conjunction with Article 12 Nationality Act (2014): https://www.admin.ch/opc/fr/official -compilation/2016/2561.pdf(FR) Articles 2 ff Ordonnance on Swiss Nationality: https://www.admin.ch/opc/fr/official -compilation/2016/2577.pdf (FR)

PRS	1	С	Is it a requirement that the parents are also stateless for the otherwise stateless child to acquire nationality?	UNHCR (2012): The test is not an inquiry into whether a child's parents are stateless. The requirements for simplified naturalisation are reduced vis-à-vis ordinary naturalisation. Nevertheless, the authorities maintain discretion when deciding whether the criteria are fulfilled. The legal residence requirement is contrary to Switzerland's international obligations and can result in children born stateless in Switzerland not being able to acquire Swiss nationality because their parents are irregular migrants. The possibility of simplified naturalisation expires once the stateless child turns eighteen. No.	Article 23 Nationality Act (2014): https://www.admin.ch/opc/fr/official -compilation/2016/2561.pdf (FR)
PRS	1	d	Are stateless children required to prove they cannot access another nationality to acquire the nationality of the country of birth? If yes, please describe how this is	UNHCR (2012): A Contracting State cannot avoid the obligations to grant its nationality to a person who would otherwise be stateless based on its own interpretation of another State's nationality laws. The burden of proof must be shared between the claimant and the authorities. PRS	2	С		Can nationality be withdrawn from foundlings if this leads to statelessness?	UNHCR (2012): Nationality acquired by foundlings may only be lost if it is proven that the child possesses another nationality.	Nationality can be withdrawn if it is later established who the parents are, if such action would not result in the child becoming stateless. Nationality cannot be withdrawn if it would result in the child becoming stateless or in the case of an individual who has already reached the age of 18. UN Convention on the Reduction of Statelessness, 1961: Article 5 ENS (2015): Children may be exposed to a (temporary) risk of statelessness during the adoption process due to the nationality law of the child's country of origin.	A Swiss child adopted by foreign nationals loses Swiss nationality once the adoption enters into legal force, but only if the child thereby acquires the nationality of the adopting parent or already has this nationality. European Convention on Nationality, 1997: Article 6(4)(d) Committee on the Rights of the Child (2015): Ensure that the child is not stateless or discriminated against during the waiting period between arrival and formal adoption.	A foreign child adopted by Swiss parents acquires Swiss nationality. However, the adoption only becomes formally effective after a waiting period of one year during which the adoptive parents already cared for the child. If the child is born at home/outside a medical facility the birth can be reported by the mother or any other witness to the birth. Late registration is possible. If the parents are undocumented the child's birth must still be registered. Reportedly, some undocumented parents have encountered delays or barriers when trying to register births.	fied- compilation/19070042/index.html#a 40 (EN) Article 15a, Civil Registry Ordinance: https://www.admin.ch/opc/fr/classifi ed- compilation/20040234/index.html#a 15a (FR) Article 34, Civil Registry Ordinance: https://www.admin.ch/opc/fr/classifi ed- compilation/20040234/index.html#a 34 (FR) Instruction to the Civil Registry Ordinance on the registration of non- nationals (October 2008): https://www.bj.admin.ch/content/da m/data/bj/gesellschaft/zivilstand/wei sungen/weisungen-07/10-08-10-01- d.pdf (DE) Instruction to the Civil Registry Ordinance on the registration of non- nationals with regard to legal stay in the country (January 2011): https://www.bj.admin.ch/content/da m/data/bj/gesellschaft/zivilstand/wei sungen/weisungen-07/10-11-01-02- d.pdf (DE)

If yes, please describe how and by whom (e.g. if the mother/father's nationality is recorded and/or automatically attributed to the child, if there's a formal procedure, if information on both parents is recorded etc.)	Convention on the Rights of the Child, 1989: Articles 3 & 7	Yes, the child's nationality is recorded on the birth certificate. The nationality is determined by the cantonal civil registrar on the basis of the parents' documents, if available. Information on the parents is also recorded if available. If the information is not available or the parents' documentation not deemed to be credible, the relevant information is not recorded i.e. if the parents' nationality is unknown, the child's nationality will not be recorded on the birth certificate. Legal and practical obstacles to birth registration should be removed.	Problems with birth registration and delays have been reported. The fact that birth registration is handled at the cantonal level makes it difficult to find accurate and up to date information. A report by the Federal Council of 2009 reports that at a set date in 2007, 813 births were not yet registered because of missing information about the identity of the mother or the father of the child. 90 % of these cases were resolved within 6 months after the birth of the child. PRS	5	f	Are there mandatory reporting requirements that would deter undocumented parents from coming forward to register their children (e.g. health or civil registry authorities required to report undocumented migrants)?	Committee on the Rights of Migrant Workers and Members of their Families & Committee on the Rights of the Child (2017): Legal and practical obstacles to birth registration should be removed, including by prohibiting data sharing between health providers or civil servants responsible for registration with immigration enforcement authorities; and not requiring parents to produce documentation regarding their migration status.	No. Guidance to the Civil Registry Ordinance of January 2011 on the registration of non-nationals explicitly prohibits illegal stays from being reported to the migration authorities. The same applies to medical authorities or schools. A problem can arise if the health insurance of an undocumented person states a false address and this address is reported to the civil registry. UN Convention on the Reduction of Statelessness, 1961: Article 8 European Convention on Nationality, 1997: Article 7(3) Universal Declaration of Human Rights: Article 15(2)	Yes, the Nationality Act foresees different mechanisms for loss of nationality. PRS	7	С	Are withdrawal provisions applied in practice?	On 11 September 2019 the SEM announced that for the first time it ordered that a Turkish-Swiss dual national be deprived of his Swiss nationality on the basis of Article 42 of the Nationality Act. He has been convicted of terrorism related crimes. This decision has been appealed to the Federal Administrative Court. A second deprivation order was issued on 31 December 2019 against a French-Swiss dual national. The woman who is currently residing in Syria has been suspected of supporting terrorist activities but not convicted. As she has not appealed the decision it entered into force.
